SUMMARY DISPOSITION REPORT

Case No. M380 – Iowa State University

April 8, 2013

A. Case Chronology.

1. How the investigation began.

In the spring of 2011, Fred Hoiberg (Hoiberg), head men's basketball coach, was in attendance at his son's nonscholastic basketball game and witnessed Keith Moore (Moore), then student men's basketball coach, at the game. Knowing that Moore had previously coached one of the participating nonscholastic teams and that Moore's attendance at a nonscholastic event was contrary to NCAA legislation, Hoiberg approached Moore and asked why he was present and whether he had been contacting men's basketball prospective student-athletes. Moore replied that he had. That night, Hoiberg reported the potential violation to Jamie Pollard, the institution's director of athletics. The institution relieved Moore of his responsibilities and initiated an internal investigation the next day.

The discovery of impermissible telecommunication with prospects by Moore ultimately led the internal investigative team to a comprehensive telephone and text messaging audit, not only of the men's basketball program, but of all its sports programs (18) and all its coaches (69). The review covered a three-year time period (2008-09 through 2010-11 academic years). At the conclusion of the review, the institution discovered that there were a significant number of recruiting communication violations involving most of its sports programs and provided a self-report to the NCAA enforcement staff November 23, 2011 (Exhibit NCAA-3).

2. Date of notice of inquiry.

Steven Leath, president, received a verbal notice of inquiry January 31, 2012.

SUMMARY DISPOSITION

April 8, 2013

B. General Overview of Findings.

1. Nature of the violations.

The violations in this case involve impermissible telephone calls in all of the institution's sports programs, impermissible text messaging by Moore, impermissible coaching activities involving nonscholastic-based basketball by Moore and a current women's basketball noncoaching staff member, and a failure to monitor by the institution.

2. Why the case is major.

The enforcement staff, institution and involved individuals agree that the findings detailed in this summary disposition report constitute a major infractions case as a whole. More specifically, based on the significant number and frequency of the telephone call violations, as detailed in Finding Nos. 1, 2-b and 3 through 7, as well as the volume of impermissible text messages sent by Moore as detailed in Finding No. 2-a, the institution and enforcement staff are in agreement that those findings constitute major violations. However, with regard to some of the involved individuals, while all agree that the case as a whole constitutes a major infractions case, some involved individuals will be taking the position that some findings standing alone should be found to be secondary violations. The information following the specific findings will highlight if such a position has been taken with regard to any particular finding.

Finally, as detailed in Finding No. 8, the institution did not follow its procedures for monitoring telephone calls for a three-year period and the fact that the coaches involved did not understand logging requirements indicated deficiencies in rules education, which contributed to the significant number of violations outlined in Finding Nos. 1, 2-b and 3 through 7. Therefore, the institution and the enforcement staff agree that Finding No. 8 constitutes a major violation.

3. Show-cause advisement.

The following coaches have been advised that by consenting to the use of the summary disposition process, they are acknowledging personal involvement in their respective findings and are at risk for a show-cause penalty, as outlined in NCAA Bylaw 19.5.2.2-(1):

- a. Bobby Elliott (Elliott), then assistant football coach and current University of Notre Dame assistant football coach, is named and at risk for his involvement in Finding No. 1-b-(1).

- b. Bill Bleil (Bleil), assistant football coach, is named and at risk for his involvement in Finding No. 1-b-(2).
- c. Shane Burnham (Burnham), assistant football coach, is named and at risk for his involvement in Finding No. 1-b-(3).
- d. Luke Wells (Wells), then assistant football coach and current Utah State University assistant football coach, is named and at risk for his involvement in Finding No. 1-b-(4).
- e. Moore is named and at risk for his involvement in Finding Nos. 2-a and Secondary Finding No. 3-a.
- f. Daniyal Robinson (Robinson), then assistant men's basketball coach and current University of Houston assistant men's basketball coach, is named and at risk for his involvement in Finding No. 2-c-(1).

4. Culpability Analysis

A thorough review of the evidence revealed that the telephone call violations in this case occurred across all sports and the majority of the violations were attributable to systemic logging failures wherein coaches failed to log a short call rendering subsequent calls within the legislated time period impermissible. Very specifically, systemic logging failures occurred because many of the coaches were not logging calls in which they left messages or did not make contact. Thereafter, subsequent impermissible calls were placed. As a result, numerous violations occurred and the monitoring processes in place at the time failed to detect this ongoing, deficient practice. [Note: One thousand four hundred five of the 1,484 total impermissible calls involved logging issues.]. In addition, while some rules education was provided via email in July 2008 (Exhibit NCAA-4) and a general PowerPoint presentation in June 2009 (football coaches only) and October 2009 (all other sports programs), some of the institution's coaches generally reported a lack of knowledge regarding the need to log all calls, even calls where no contact occurred or voicemail messages were left (Exhibit NCAA-5). As a result, the institution's coaches generally reported a lack of knowledge of the need to log all calls, even calls where no contact occurred or voicemail messages were left.

While coaches are responsible for all violations in which he or she is involved, it is also important to look at the totality of the circumstances in assessing the culpability of the coaches who commit violations. Because of the circumstances in this case, specifically the institution's acknowledgement of a systemic deficiency with regard to the prior standards set by the NCAA Division I Committee on Infractions for contemporaneous documentation of telephone calls, the enforcement staff believed that it was important to look at more than just the total number of impermissible calls attributed to a coach in determining individual culpability.

SUMMARY DISPOSITION

While acknowledging that the culpability analysis used in this case is a different approach than has been taken in past cases, the enforcement staff is mindful of recent efforts to deregulate these types of contacts. While the degree of deregulation of telephone call deregulation is up for debate, the enforcement staff believes that the membership generally supports deregulation. In addition, the enforcement staff believed that the remarkable number of logging-type violations involved in this case, coupled with a lack of adequate rules education regarding logging requirements, dictated that a new and appropriate approach be used to distinguish the violations that could be attributed to what appeared to be institutional-wide, systemic breakdowns from violations to which specific, individualized culpability should be assessed.

In order to evaluate individual culpability in a more precise manner the enforcement staff used the following analysis:

- a. All telephone call violations were identified based on existing standards as set by the Committee on Infractions. More specifically, the calls were identified without regard to a one-, two- or three-minute analysis. The total number of telephone call violations for all sports was 1,484. [Note: The 1,484 number includes 55 impermissible calls placed by noncoaching staff members in football and men's basketball as detailed in Finding Nos. 2-a and 7.]
- b. The more clear-cut, intentional violations were then separated out from the violations where some type of logging issue was involved. Specifically, all calls placed when the coaches were not allowed to make any telephone contact at all (e.g., before April 15 of a prospect's junior year in football or calling during an impermissible time period) were identified. Those types of more clear-cut violations were counted and that number was placed in the "culpable call" category for each coach. [Note: Out of the total 1,484 impermissible calls, 24 of these calls were the more clear-cut, intentional type violations.]
- c. With regard to the remaining impermissible calls involving logging issues (1,405) (i.e., those calls where a permissible call is made and then followed up by additional contact), the first step in the process was to identify the applicable "trigger call." Specifically:

SUMMARY DISPOSITION

April 8, 2013

- (1) Initially, the enforcement staff analyzed the facts under the established Committee on Infractions requirements that a "trigger call" occurred if there was no contemporaneous documentation of the call. Using that standard, over 33 coaches across all sports programs would have been named and considered at-risk for 1,405 impermissible calls.
- (2) Because of the nature and extent of the systemic breakdowns, the enforcement staff then re-examined what constituted an unquestionable "trigger call."
  - (i) Initially, the enforcement staff identified the "trigger call" as any initial call longer than one minute in length. Based on that standard, over 26 coaches across all sports programs would have been named and considered at-risk for 938 violations.
  - (ii) Based on the degree of systemic breakdowns, in order to mitigate the large number of potential involved individuals, the enforcement staff then identified the "trigger call" as any initial call longer than two minutes in length. This approach significantly reduced the number of coaches at risk to six.
- (3) With the "trigger call" identified, the enforcement staff then identified the subsequent impermissible call(s). If a coach made a "trigger call" of more than two minutes in length and then that same coach placed a subsequent impermissible call, the enforcement staff deemed that violation to fall in the "culpable call" category. If the subsequent call was placed by a different coach, that violation was placed in the "logging issue" category.
- (4) Finally, the enforcement staff then looked at the total number of culpable calls for each individual, which included those clear-cut, culpable calls and those logging issues where the same coach placed the trigger and offending call(s). That total number of culpable calls was then analyzed taking into consideration the overall total number of impermissible calls, frequency and nature of the violations.

The following diagram provides a simplified breakdown of the analysis of the "culpable" versus the "logging issues" calls. Also, a chart showing the complete breakdown of all calls in all sports can be found at Exhibit NCAA-6.

C. Specific Findings and Narratives.

1. [NCAA Bylaws 13.1.3.1 and 13.1.3.1.2]

It is agreed that between July 2008 and May 2011, members of the football coaching staff violated NCAA recruiting communication legislation by placing 919 impermissible telephone calls to 235 football prospective student-athletes. Specifically:

- a. The majority of impermissible calls (821) were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a football coach failed to document a message or lack of contact resulting in a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible.
- b. The remaining 98 impermissible calls were the result of the football coaches placing calls for which more specific, individualized culpability was attached. Specifically:
  - (1) Between May 2010 and May 2011, Bobby Elliott (Elliott), then assistant football coach, placed 19 impermissible telephone calls. All calls were placed after Elliott had already made one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period.
  - (2) Between January 2009 and March 2011, Bill Bleil (Bleil), assistant football coach, placed 20 impermissible telephone calls. Specifically:
    - (a) Bleil placed one call prior to April 15 of a prospect's junior year.
    - (b) Bleil placed one call after May 31 but prior to September 1 of a prospect's senior year.
    - (c) Bleil placed 18 calls after he had already made one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period.
  - (3) Between October 2009 and February 2011, Shane Burnham (Burnham), assistant football coach placed 13 impermissible telephone calls. Specifically:
    - (a) Burnham placed four calls after May 31 but prior to September 1 of a prospect's senior year.

SUMMARY DISPOSITION

- (b) Burnham placed nine calls after he had already made one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period.
- (4) Between December 2009 and December 2010, Luke Wells (Wells), then assistant football coach, placed 12 impermissible telephone calls. Specifically:
  - (a) Wells placed one call prior to April 15 of a prospect's junior year.
  - (b) Wells placed seven calls after May 31 but prior to September 1 of a prospect's senior year.
  - (c) Wells placed four calls after he had already made one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period.
- (5) Between July 2008 and May 2011, 11 members of the football coaching staff placed a total of 34 impermissible telephone calls. Specifically:
  - (a) The coaches placed five calls after May 31 but prior to September 1 of a prospect's senior year.
  - (b) The coaches placed 29 calls after they had already placed one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period.

Supporting Narrative:

The NCAA enforcement staff, institution, Bleil, Burnham, Elliott and Wells are in agreement with the facts of these findings. The enforcement staff believes that major violations of NCAA legislation occurred. While the institution agrees that this is a major infractions case overall, the institution takes no position and defers to the judgment of the NCAA Division I Committee on Infractions on whether a finding against each involved individual should be deemed to be major or secondary. Bleil, Burnham, Elliott and Wells argue that their individual violations constitute secondary violations. Please see each individual's position statement attached to this report explaining their position.

The institution's telephone audit revealed that members of the football staff placed a total of 919 impermissible telephone calls to 235 prospects. A thorough review of the evidence revealed that the majority of the telephone call violations involving the football staff (821) were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a football coach failed to document a message or lack of contact, which caused a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible. The following information details the remaining 98 impermissible calls relating to the "culpable calls," including those placed by individual football staff members that the enforcement staff believes should be named and at risk for Finding No. 1:

a. Elliott.

In addition to the 180 impermissible calls that Elliot placed due to staff-wide "logging issues," Elliott placed 19 "culpable calls" to 12 prospects during a 12-month period. All 19 of Elliott's "culpable calls" were placed after he had already made one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period. The following is a detailed breakdown of Elliott's impermissible telephone calls:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Elliott	199	180	0	19	19

During his August 22, 2011, interview with the institution, Elliott stated that he used his own personal log book to track telephone contact made with a prospect. Elliott explained that he would continue to call the prospect until he reached the prospect. Elliott reported that he did not document voicemails, unanswered calls or dropped calls. Elliott reported that he felt a one- or two-minute call "spoke for itself;" he did not feel it was necessary to mark those as calls on his logs and he has never documented those types of calls during his coaching career. Additionally, Elliott reported that he is not that good with technology and he believed many of the calls attributed to him to be "pocket dials" even though he did not note them as such in his phone logs.

Elliott stated that he did not recall receiving rules education about the subject and that it was not until he was questioned about this issue during the institution's inquiry that the compliance staff talked to him about the need to log such calls. Elliott stated that he was not familiar with the 2008 NCAA enforcement document outlining that there was no "three-minute rule" and that a countable call occurred unless a log showed contemporaneous documentation indicating no contact was made on the call.<sup>1</sup>

During the investigation, the institution produced documentation showing that July 28, 2008, the institution sent an email to all coaches regarding that there was no "three-minute rule" and also attached to the email the enforcement document explaining the need to contemporaneously document all calls. In addition, a PowerPoint presentation was given to the football coaches in June 2009 that generally addressed telephone calls (Exhibit NCAA-5). Elliott began employment at the institution in February 2010 after the documentation and presentation was provided to coaches.

b. Bleil.

In addition to the 58 impermissible calls that Bleil placed due to staff-wide "logging issues," Bleil placed 20 "culpable calls" to five prospects over a 26-month period. Bleil placed one "early" call (i.e., prior to a permissible time to make contact), two calls during an impermissible time period and the remaining "culpable calls" were placed after Bleil had already made one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period. The following is a detailed breakdown of Bleil's impermissible telephone calls:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Bleil	78	58	2	18	20

During his August 22, 2011, interview with the institution, Bleil explained that if he placed a call to a prospect and left a message, he would try and remember to put an "M" in the log to indicate that he left a message. Bleil stated that if he did not put an "M" in the log when he left a message, it was a housekeeping error and he believed that most of the time he noted in the log when he had left a message. Bleil reported that he was not sure what conversations the compliance staff had with him regarding how to log such calls, but stated that he was sure the staff did talk to him about logging these types of calls. Bleil added that Dustin Gray, then assistant compliance director and current compliance director, and Josh Snyder, then associate athletics director for compliance, were good at their jobs and they met with the compliance staff once per month. Bleil stated that failing to log an "M" meant he did not make contact with the prospect and he did not view such calls as a countable call.

Bleil stated that he was not familiar with the 2008 NCAA enforcement document outlining there was no "three-minute rule" and that a countable call occurred unless a log showed contemporaneous documentation indicating no contact was made on the call. [Note: On July 28, 2008, the institution sent an email to all coaches regarding that there was no "three-minute rule" and also attached to the email the enforcement document explaining the need to contemporaneously document all calls (Exhibit NCAA-4). In addition, a PowerPoint presentation was given to the football coaches in June 2009 that generally addressed telephone calls (Exhibit NCAA-5).] Bleil began employment at the institution in December 2009.

c. Burnham.

In addition to the 80 impermissible calls that Burnham placed due to staff-wide "logging issues," Burnham placed 13 "culpable calls" to eight prospects over a 16-month period. Four of Burnham's calls were placed during a time period when it was not permissible to place telephone calls and nine calls were placed after he had already made one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period. The following is a detailed breakdown of Burnham's impermissible telephone calls:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Burnham	93	80	4	9	13

Regarding the four calls placed during an impermissible time period, Burnham explained that the calls were placed around the time of an institutional camp and Burnham believed that three of the prospects that were called had either attended camp or expressed an interest in camp. During his August 22, 2011, interview with the institution, Burnham explained he kept a file on all prospects he was recruiting and in that file he noted each time he talked by phone with a prospect. Burnham explained that at the end of each month, information was provided to the assistant recruiting coordinator who then entered the calls in Recruiting Radar.<sup>2</sup> Burnham stated that to ensure that the football staff only placed one call per week to a prospect, each coach was responsible for calling the prospects they were recruiting. The lead recruiter would then ask the head coach to call the prospect if needed during a particular week. Burnham stated that if a call was placed to a prospect but no contact was made, he may have documented that in the log on a few occasions.

Burnham reported that a compliance staff member may have told him it was necessary to log a telephone call made to a prospect even if he only left a message or made no contact, but he said he did not know that failing to log such calls could result in the calls being deemed a violation of NCAA legislation. Burnham stated that he was not familiar with the 2008 NCAA enforcement document outlining that there was no "three-minute rule" and that a countable call occurred unless a log showed contemporaneous documentation indicating no contact was made on the call. [Note: On July 28, 2008, the institution sent an email to all coaches regarding that there was no "three-minute rule" and also attached to the email the enforcement document explaining the need to contemporaneously document all calls (Exhibit NCAA-4). In addition, a PowerPoint presentation was given to the football coaches in June 2009 that generally addressed telephone calls (Exhibit NCAA-5).] Burnham began employment at the institution in February 2009.

d. Wells.

In addition to the 81 impermissible calls Wells placed due to staff-wide "logging issues," Wells placed 12 "culpable calls" to nine prospects over a 16-month period. Eight of Wells' calls were placed during a time period when it was not permissible to place telephone calls and four calls were placed after he had already made one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period. The following is a detailed breakdown of Wells' impermissible telephone calls:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Wells	93	81	8	4	12

Regarding the calls he placed during an impermissible time period, Wells explained during his April 22, 2011, interview that five of the calls were placed to prospects near the time they attended an institutional camp. Wells also reported that he kept a file for each individual prospect he recruited and he would provide his logs to the assistant recruiting coordinator who would then turn them into compliance. Wells explained he typically would not note in his file if he did not reach the prospect or left a message. Wells stated that he did not know that he was supposed to identify a left message in his logs and that on the occasions he did note left message it was for his own personal knowledge, not for compliance purposes.

Wells reported that he was never informed by anyone at Iowa State University or his previous institution that he needed to document dropped calls, pocket dials or voicemail messages. [Note: On July 28, 2008, the institution sent an email to all coaches regarding that there was no "three-minute rule" and also attached to the email the enforcement document explaining the need to contemporaneously document all calls. In addition, a PowerPoint presentation was given to the football coaches in June 2009 that generally addressed telephone calls (Exhibit NCAA-5).] Wells began employment at the institution in February 2009.

e. Other staff members.

Regarding the remaining 34 "culpable calls" placed by other members of the football staff, most of the coaches reported that they did not think calls in which they did not make contact with a prospect or left a message were presumed to be a countable call without contemporaneous documentation. Some coaches reported that even if they identified a left message on the log, it was not for a compliance reason but for personal use to track that they had attempted to contact a prospect. The coaches also reported that they met monthly with the compliance staff to review NCAA rules. Most of the coaches reported that they were unaware of the 2008 educational document from the NCAA informing institutions it was necessary to document all calls, including voicemail messages, as without contemporaneous documentation, those calls would be deemed countable calls.

The following is a detailed breakdown of the impermissible telephone calls placed by the other coaches on the football staff:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
A	57	51	1	5	6
B	92	87	0	5	5

2. [NCAA Bylaws 13.1.3.1.2 (2008-09 NCAA Division I Manual), 13.1.3.4.1 and 13.4.1.2]

It is agreed that between July 2008 and August 2011, members of the men's basketball coaching staff violated NCAA recruiting communication legislation by sending 160 impermissible text messages and placing 158 impermissible telephone calls to 21 men's basketball prospective student-athletes. Specifically:

- a. Between August 2010 and August 2011, Keith Moore (Moore), then student men's basketball coach and former boy's nonscholastic coach, sent 160 impermissible text messages and placed 12 impermissible telephone calls to five prospects. [NCAA Bylaw 13.4.1.2]
- b. The majority of impermissible calls (118) were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a men's basketball coach failed to document a message or lack of contact resulting in a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible.
- c. The remaining 28 impermissible calls were the result of the men's basketball coaches placing calls for which more specific, individualized culpability was attached. Specifically:
  - (1) Between July 2008 and February 2009, Daniyal Robinson (Robinson), then assistant men's basketball coach, placed 21 impermissible telephone calls. All calls were placed after Robinson had already made the permissible call(s) to a prospect during the legislated time period. [NCAA Bylaws 13.1.3.1.2 (2008-09 NCAA Division I Manual)]

Supporting Narrative:

The NCAA enforcement staff, institution and Robinson are in agreement with the facts of these findings. The enforcement staff believes that major violations of NCAA legislation occurred. While the institution agrees that this is a major infractions case overall, the institution takes no position and defers to the judgment of the NCAA Division I Committee on Infractions on whether a finding against each involved individual should be deemed to be major or secondary. Please see Robinson's position statement attached to this report explaining his position. After several requests by the enforcement staff, Moore failed to respond or submit information related to the violations outlined in this finding. (See Exhibit NCAA-7.)

The institution's telephone audit revealed that members of the men's basketball coaching staff placed 158 impermissible telephone calls to 21 prospects and that one then assistant student men's basketball coach sent 160 impermissible text messages to five prospects. A thorough review of the evidence revealed that the majority of the telephone call violations (118) involving the men's basketball staff were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a men's basketball coach failed to document a left message or lack of contact, which caused a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible. The following information details the remaining 40 "culpable calls," including those placed by individual men's basketball staff members that the enforcement staff believes should be named and at risk for Finding No. 2:

a. Moore.

Prior to being hired as a student coach for the men's basketball program in the fall of 2010, Moore attended the institution from 1977 through 1981 and was a member of the baseball and men's basketball teams. Immediately prior to returning to the institution as a student coach, Moore coached the 15- and 16-year-old teams for the All Iowa Attack nonscholastic boys' basketball club. While employed as a student coach at Iowa State University, Moore sent 160 text messages to prospects that he coached with the All Iowa Attack squads.

SUMMARY DISPOSITION

April 8, 2013

During his April 18, 2011, interview with the institution, Moore indicated that he received NCAA rules education from the compliance staff regarding limitations on his relationship with the prospects he had previously coached. Moore also stated that he knew he could not recruit those prospects on behalf of the institution, and he was aware that the limitations on contact with those prospects included placing telephone calls and sending text messages. Moore explained that he received text messages from the prospects in the fall of 2010 and the spring of 2011, which corresponded with the conclusion of the 2010 and the beginning of the 2011 nonscholastic basketball seasons. Moore stated that he did not view the contacts with the prospects as "recruiting" because his communication with them was related to their nonscholastic team; therefore, he did not think it was an issue. However, during his August 23, 2011, interview with the institution, Moore clarified that his knowledge surrounding whether he could text message prospects evolved over his time at the institution. Moore explained that he initially thought he could text his former players, then believed he could only respond to texts and finally came to the conclusion that he could not text at all<sup>3</sup>.

b. Robinson.

In addition to the 43 impermissible calls that Robinson placed due to staff-wide "logging issues," Robinson placed 21 "culpable calls" to two prospects over a seven-month period. All 21 of Robinson's "culpable calls" were placed after he had already made the permissible call(s) to a prospect during the legislated time period. The following is a detailed breakdown of Robinson's impermissible telephone calls:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Robinson	64	43	0	21	21

During his June 27, 2012, interview with the enforcement staff and institution, Robinson stated that he used a notebook to track the telephone calls placed to prospects and he would then provide the notebook to a graduate assistant or manager who entered the information into Recruiting Radar.<sup>4</sup> Robinson explained that the only calls he logged in the notebook were calls in which he made contact with a prospect or a parent.

<sup>3</sup> Moore was not issued an institutional cell phone. Moore placed all of the impermissible calls and sent all of the impermissible text messages from his personal cell phone.

---

Robinson stated that he was told he did not have to log calls in which no contact was made with a prospect or only left a message, but Robinson could not recall who told him that information. Robinson reported that he received NCAA rules education from compliance on a regular basis through meetings that involved the men's basketball staff and other meetings that included the entire athletics department. However, Robinson stated that he was not familiar with the 2008 NCAA enforcement document outlining that there was no "three-minute rule" and that a countable call occurred unless a log showed contemporaneous documentation indicating no contact was made on the call. [Note: On July 28, 2008, the institution sent an email to all coaches regarding that there was no "three-minute rule" and also attached to the email the enforcement document explaining the need to contemporaneously document all calls (Exhibit NCAA-4). In addition, a PowerPoint presentation was given to the coaches in October 2009 that generally addressed telephone calls (Exhibit NCAA-5).] Robinson began employment at the institution in May 2008.

c. Other staff members.

Regarding the other seven "culpable calls" placed by the basketball staff, the most common explanation provided by the other coaches for the telephone call violations was that they did not believe that calls in which no contact was made with the prospect constituted a countable call. The following is a detailed breakdown of impermissible telephone calls placed by other coaches on the men's basketball staff:

B	23	18	0	5	5
C	10	8	0	2	2

3. [NCAA Bylaws 13.1.3.1 (2008-09 NCAA Division I Manual) and 13.1.3.1.1]

It is agreed that between September 2008 and December 2010, members of the men's and women's track and cross country coaching staffs violated NCAA recruiting communication legislation by placing 138 impermissible telephone calls to 41 men's and women's track and cross country prospective student-athletes. Specifically:

SUMMARY DISPOSITION

April 8, 2013

- a. The majority of impermissible calls (122) were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a track and field and cross country coach failed to document a message or lack of contact resulting in a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible.
- b. The remaining 16 impermissible calls were the result of five track and field and cross country coaches placing calls to a prospect after that coach had already placed one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period.

Supporting Narrative:

The NCAA enforcement staff and institution are in agreement of the facts of these findings. The enforcement staff believes that major violations of NCAA legislation occurred. While the institution agrees that this is a major infractions case overall, the institution takes no position and defers to the judgment of the NCAA Division I Committee on Infractions on whether a finding against each involved individual should be deemed to be major or secondary. The following is a detailed breakdown of the impermissible telephone calls for coaches on the track and cross country staffs:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Coach A	28	22	0	6	6
Coach B	16	12	0	4	4
Coach C	54	51	0	3	3
Coach D	4	2	0	2	2

The institution's telephone audit revealed that members of the men's and women's track and field and cross country staff placed a total of 138 impermissible telephone calls to 41 prospects. A thorough review of the evidence revealed that the majority of the telephone call violations (122) involving the track and field and cross country programs were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a track and field and cross country coach failed to document a left message or lack of contact, which caused a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible.

There were a total of 16 "culpable calls" among five staff members with the largest number attributed to one staff member being six. As a result of the low number of culpable calls, the enforcement staff and the institution did not believe that any involved track and field or cross country coach should be named and at risk.

Two track and field and cross country coaching staff members interviewed by the institution and/or enforcement staff explained that the track and field and cross country coaches used Recruiting Radar<sup>5</sup> to track calls to prospects, but there was confusion among the staff interviewed regarding what calls needed to be logged. One coach reported that she knew all calls, including voicemail messages, needed to be logged into Recruiting Radar, but she was unaware that failing to log such calls would mean the calls were presumed to be countable calls. Another coaching staff member reported that he used Recruiting Radar to track calls to prospects, but he did not know that they were required to log all calls, including voicemail messages. The two coaches interviewed attributed the majority of the impermissible calls to failing to log voicemail messages or dropped calls with prospects.

One coach interviewed recalled receiving an email from compliance a few years prior noting the importance of documenting dropped calls and voicemail messages and admitted that the coaches needed to do a better job logging such calls. The other coach stated that he was not familiar with the 2008 NCAA enforcement document outlining that there was no "three-minute rule" and that a countable call occurred unless a log showed contemporaneous documentation indicating no contact was made on the call. [Note: On July 28, 2008, the institution sent an email to all coaches regarding that there was no "three-minute rule" and also attached to the email the enforcement document explaining the need to contemporaneously document all calls (Exhibit NCAA-4). In addition, a general PowerPoint presentation was given to coaches in October 2009 that generally addressed telephone calls (Exhibit NCAA-5).] The reporting coaches' employment at the institution began after July 2008 but before October 2009.

4. [NCAA Bylaw 13.1.3.1.4]

It is agreed that between July 2008 and June 2011, members of the women's basketball coaching staff violated NCAA recruiting communication legislation by placing 55 impermissible telephone calls to 19 women's basketball prospective student-athletes. Specifically:

The remaining 10 impermissible calls were the result of two women's basketball coaches placing three calls to a prospect prior to April of the prospect's junior year and three coaches placing seven calls to a prospect after that coach had already placed one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period.

The NCAA enforcement staff and institution are in agreement with these findings. The enforcement staff believes that major violations of NCAA legislation occurred. Coach B	6	3	0	3	3

The institution's telephone audit revealed members of the women's basketball coaching staff placed a total of 55 impermissible telephone calls to 19 prospects. A thorough review of the evidence revealed that the majority of the telephone call violations (45) involving the women's basketball staff were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a women's basketball coach failed to document a left message or lack of contact, which caused a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible.

There were a total of 10 "culpable calls" among four staff members with the largest number attributed to one staff member being five. As a result of the low number of culpable calls, the enforcement staff and the institution did not believe that any involved women's basketball coach should be named and at risk.

The women's basketball coaching staff member interviewed by the institution regarding the impermissible calls explained that the coaches used Recruiting

5. [NCAA Bylaw 13.1.3.1 (2008-09 Manual) and 13.1.3.1 (2011-12 Manual)]

It is agreed that between July 2008 and April 2010, members of the women's tennis coaching staff violated NCAA recruiting communication legislation by placing 50 impermissible telephone calls to seven women's tennis prospective student-athletes. Specifically:

- a. The majority of impermissible calls (42) were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a women's tennis coach failed to document a message or lack of contact resulting in a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible.
- b. The remaining eight impermissible calls were the result of a women's tennis coach placing one call prior to July 1 following a prospect's junior year and two coaches placing seven calls to three prospects after that coach had already placed the one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period.

breakdown of the impermissible telephone calls placed by the coaches on the women's tennis staff:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Coach A	45	40	1	4	5
Coach B	5	2	0	3	3

The institution's telephone audit revealed that members of the women's tennis staff placed 50 impermissible telephone calls to seven prospects. A thorough review of the evidence revealed that the majority of the telephone call violations (42) involving the women's tennis program were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a women's tennis coach failed to document a message or lack of contact, which caused a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible.

There were eight total "culpable calls" among two staff members with each coach having placed four "culpable calls." As a result of the low number of culpable calls, the enforcement staff and the institution did not believe that any involved tennis coach should be named and at risk.

One tennis coach interviewed reported that the tennis staff met with compliance once per month to go over NCAA rules and the staff also received emails from compliance updating the staff on NCAA legislation. In addition, the coach explained that he did not believe he was required initially to identify whether he had left a voicemail with a prospect within the Recruiting Radar<sup>7</sup> software. The coach reported that prior to the institution obtaining Recruiting Radar, he logged calls in a recruiting log book, made copies of the log and provided it to compliance at the end of each month. The coach reported that before the institution began investigating the issue, he only logged telephone calls in which he actually spoke to the prospect and he did not log left messages or unanswered calls in Recruiting Radar.

The coach stated that he did not remember compliance instructing him to put an "LM" or "NA" in the log if he did not reach a prospect, but he did recall compliance telling him to make sure to log all calls. The coach explained that he took that directive to mean staff needed to be more cognizant in logging all calls. The coach stated that he was not familiar with the 2008 NCAA enforcement document outlining that there was no "three-minute rule" and that a countable call occurred unless a log showed contemporaneous documentation indicating no contact was made on the call. 6. [NCAA Bylaw 13.1.3.1]

It is agreed that between July 2008 and April 2011, coaches from eight sports programs (other than the sports programs identified in Finding Nos. 1 through 5) violated NCAA recruiting communication legislation by placing 121 impermissible telephone calls to 64 prospective student-athletes. Specifically:

- a. The majority of impermissible calls (112) were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a coach failed to document a message or lack of contact resulting in a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible.
- b. The remaining nine impermissible calls were the result of coaches placing calls for which more specific, individualized culpability was attached. Specifically:
  - (1) Between July 2008 and October 2010, three wrestling coaches placed three impermissible telephone calls to three prospects. One call was placed prior to July of a prospect's junior year and two calls were placed after the coach had already placed one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period.
  - (2) In February 2011, a women's soccer coaching staff member placed one impermissible telephone call to a prospect. The call was placed after the coach had already placed one permissible call to the prospect during the legislated time period.
  - (3) Between August 2010 and January 2011, two members of the women's gymnastics staff placed a total of three impermissible calls to three prospects. The calls were placed after the coaches had already placed one permissible call to a prospect during the legislated time period.
  - (4) In September 2010, a women's swimming and diving coach placed one impermissible telephone call to a prospect. The call was placed after the coach had already placed one permissible call to the prospect during the legislated time period.

Supporting Narrative:

The NCAA enforcement staff and institution are in agreement with these findings. The enforcement staff believes that major violations of NCAA legislation occurred. While the institution agrees that this is a major infractions case overall, the institution takes no position and defers to the judgment of the NCAA Division I Committee on Infractions on whether a finding against each involved individual should be deemed to be major or secondary.

The institution's telephone audit revealed coaching staff members from eight sports programs not previously identified in Finding Nos. 1 through 5 placed a total of 121 impermissible telephone calls to 64 prospects. A thorough review of the evidence revealed that the majority of the telephone call violations (112) involving these other sports programs were attributed to systemic logging failures wherein a coach failed to document a message or lack of contact, which caused a subsequent call to be deemed impermissible.

The coaching staff members in the eight sports programs were not specifically interviewed regarding the impermissible calls attributed to their sports programs because the number of impermissible calls was low and because the majority of the impermissible calls were a result of the coaches failing to properly log calls. Also, most of the coaches in the other sport programs interviewed during the investigation provided explanations regarding logging failures and the institution's rules education program consistent with the other coaches interviewed. As a result, the enforcement staff and institution did not believe it necessary or efficient to conduct interviews with each coach from every sport program.

It is agreed that between August 2008 and January 2011, noncoaching staff members from the football and men's basketball staffs violated NCAA recruiting communication legislation by placing 43 telephone calls as impermissible recruiters to 14 prospective student-athletes. Specifically:

- a. Between October 2008 and July 2010, a then assistant football recruiting coordinator and current graduate assistant football coach placed 30 telephone calls as an impermissible recruiter to eight prospects.
- b. Between August and November 2008, a then assistant director of football operations placed seven impermissible telephone calls as an impermissible recruiter to a prospect.
- c. In June 2010, a then graduate assistant football coach placed two impermissible telephone calls as an impermissible recruiter to a prospect.
- d. In June 2010, an assistant director of football operations placed two impermissible telephone calls as an impermissible recruiter to two prospects.
- e. In April 2010, a then graduate assistant men's basketball coach placed an impermissible call as an impermissible recruiter to a prospect.
- f. In January 2011, a then assistant director of men's basketball operations and current assistant men's basketball coach placed one call as an impermissible recruiter to a prospect.

Supporting Narrative:

The NCAA enforcement staff and institution are in agreement with these findings. The enforcement staff believes that major violations of NCAA legislation occurred. The institution takes no position.

With regard to the then assistant football recruiting coordinator and current graduate assistant football coach referenced in Finding No. 7-a (football noncoaching staff member No. 1), the enforcement staff did not believe it was appropriate to consider him to be at risk for his involvement in this finding because a majority of his telephone calls were placed around the time that many of the prospects paid a deposit to enroll at the institution or during the prospect's official paid visit. In addition, football noncoaching staff member No. 1 reported that any calls he placed to prospects was done at the direction of a coach and that, typically, those calls were related to collecting academic transcripts or other necessary paperwork. Football noncoaching staff member No. 1 explained that the main recruiter for that particular prospect would have been the coach who directed him to make the call but he was not able to identify a specific coach who directed him to make such calls. The full-time football coaches interviewed in this case denied telling football noncoaching staff member No. 1 to make calls to prospects; rather, the coaches indicated that he likely placed the call on his own initiative in order to obtain paperwork.

SUMMARY DISPOSITION

The then assistant director of football operations referenced in Finding No. 7-b (football noncoaching staff member No. 2) reported that once a recruited prospect had signed a National Letter of Intent or once a walk on had paid the proper enrollment fees, he believed that it was permissible to call those individuals in order to collect final admission paper work (e.g., transcripts, housing forms, etc.). Football noncoaching staff member No. 2 stated that he did not recall anyone informing him that it was permissible to make such contact, but he believed that since the prospect had signed or paid an enrollment fee, it was permissible to call. Football noncoaching staff member No. 2 stated that he knew he could not place recruiting telephone calls to prospects, but he also believed that it was permissible to call prospects that were on campus for official paid visits because the prospect was physically located on campus. Football noncoaching staff member No. 2 reported he received NCAA rules education through monthly football meetings with compliance and taking the NCAA coaches certification exam and the Big 12 Conference exam.

Based on a lack of clear evidence of culpability of football noncoaching staff member No. 1 and/or the full-time football coaches, the institution and the enforcement staff did not believe that an individual should be named or at risk for Finding No. 7. Additionally, because of the information reported by football noncoaching staff members No. 1 and 2, and the low number of culpable telephone calls attributed to the coaches detailed in Finding Nos. 7-c through 7-f, the enforcement staff did not believe it necessary to interview those individuals.

8. [NCAA Constitution 2.8.1]

It is agreed that from July 2008 through August 2011, the scope and nature of the violations detailed in Finding Nos. 1 through 7 demonstrate that the athletics department failed to adequately monitor its sports programs and educate its coaches regarding telephone communication with prospective student-athletes. Specifically, regarding the failure to monitor, the institution failed to follow procedures in place to monitor telephone calls in the sport of football from July 2008 to May 2011 and, in all sports, the institution did not consistently cross-check the coaches' telephone logs with their telephone records, which contributed to the violations outlined above occurring over a three-year period. Additionally, the NCAA rules education provided to athletics department staff members regarding telephone calls to prospects was inadequate because (a) coaching staff members reported that they were not told that the failure to contemporaneously document a message or no contact would result in a countable call and (b) no rules education about the contemporaneous documentation requirement was provided to athletics department staff members after October 2009.

SUMMARY DISPOSITION

Supporting Narrative:

The NCAA enforcement staff and institution are in agreement with these findings and that major violations of NCAA legislation occurred.

Between July 2008 and August 2011, coaches from 13 sport programs placed over 1,484 impermissible telephone calls as detailed in Finding Nos. 1, 2-b, 2-c, and 3 through 7.

During his August 23, 2011, interview with institution, Dustin Gray (Gray), then assistant director of compliance and current director of compliance, reported that in August 2008, the institution began requiring coaches to use Recruiting Radar<sup>8</sup> to track contacts and telephone calls with prospects. Gray explained that coaches or a designated staff member were supposed to input their telephone contacts with prospects and associated handwritten notes into Recruiting Radar, print out individual reports for each coach and provide those reports to compliance. Gray reported that compliance was supposed to also conduct random audits on one to two sports programs per month and that Eileen Flaherty (Flaherty), then assistant director of compliance, was responsible for determining which sports were audited each month.

During her September 15, 2012, interview with the enforcement staff and institution, Flaherty explained that if a team that was just audited was selected again by the program, she would do another random selection. Flaherty reported that she never spoke with Josh Snyder (Snyder), then associate athletics director for compliance, about the auditing process and was never questioned about the sports that were or were not audited. However, during his September 16, 2012, interview with the enforcement staff and institution, Snyder reported that he oversaw the compliance staff from May 2005 through December 2010, and he had informed Flaherty that she was to include one football or one men's basketball coach each month in the audit due to the high profile nature of those sports. However, Flaherty stated that she did not keep track to make sure each sports program was audited every year, and there was never any direction to give special attention to any particular sport program during certain high recruiting periods.

SUMMARY DISPOSITION

April 8, 2013

Regarding the institution's failure to adequately educate coaches regarding NCAA telephone legislation, the compliance staff members reported that the issue of contemporaneous documentation was discussed verbally with the coaches several times. As previously mentioned, the institution provided an email sent to all coaches July 28, 2008, containing a memo from the enforcement staff outlining the need to document all telephone calls to prospects. Further, the institution provided the enforcement staff with a PowerPoint presentation from an October 2009 rules education session conducted by the compliance staff for institutional coaching staff members, which included an instruction that coaches log messages and dropped calls. However, the session did not include information indirectly that failing to document such calls could result in a countable call under NCAA rules.

Many coaches interviewed by the institution and/or the enforcement staff reported that they did not know, nor were they ever told by compliance, that it was necessary for them to log all telephone calls placed to prospects, even calls where no contact was made or a voicemail message was left. In addition, many of the coaches involved in the violations were not employed at the institution when the July 28, 2008, email was sent, and those new coaches could not recall being informed of the memo by their previous institutions. Further, besides the July 28, 2008, email, June 2009 PowerPoint (football coaches only) and October 2009 PowerPoint (all other sports programs), the institution was unable to provide any other documentation indicating it educated its coaches about the need to log all telephone calls.

In summary, despite having a monitoring system in place, the institution failed to follow those procedures in that telephone calls were not adequately monitored, especially in the sport of football from July 2008 to May 2011. In addition, with regard to all sports, the institution did not consistently cross-check the coaches' telephone logs with their telephone records. Further, the lack of adequate NCAA rules education that was provided to the institution's coaches regarding the need to log all telephone calls contributed to the violations outlined in Finding Nos. 1 through 7.

E. Review of Other Issues.

1. Unresolved allegations.

There are no unresolved allegations.

2. Ethical conduct.

Although the coaches named in this case committed the text messaging and/or recruiting telephone call violations detailed in this summary disposition report, the enforcement staff and institution do not believe their actions rose to the level of unethical conduct because of the low number of culpable calls. Additionally, the enforcement staff thought that it was important to consider the feedback provided by the membership for less emphasis and a deregulation of telephone call violations. Telephone calls placed during a time period when it is impermissible to have any contact at all is the primary concern in the aftermath of deregulation. In this case, most of the calls placed by the coaches involved institutional-wide logging issues with very few calls placed during impermissible time periods. For these reasons, the enforcement staff did not believe it was appropriate to allege an unethical conduct charge against the coaches in addition to the underlying violations.

Regarding Wells, who placed eight calls during a time period when he should not have been calling, Wells reported a majority of those calls were related to camp. Because calls related to camp are now permissible under NCAA legislation, the enforcement staff did not believe it was appropriate to specifically subject Wells to an unethical conduct charge despite the large number of culpable calls.

3. Secondary infractions.

a. [NCAA Bylaw 13.11.1.7]

It is agreed that between April 2010 and April 2011, members of the men's and women's basketball staffs impermissibly participated in coaching activities involving nonscholastic-based basketball. Specifically:

- (1) Between August 2010 and April 2011, Moore provided individual skill instruction to several girls' basketball prospective student-athletes.
- (2) Between May 2010 and July 2011, the women's basketball director of basketball operations participated in coaching activities involving a boys' nonscholastic basketball team. On at least five

F. Institution's Corrective Actions and Penalties.

1. Institution's corrective actions.

- a. Invest over $82,000 over the next three years in compliance and recruiting software with Bluechip Athletics Solution. The software will simplify recording telephone calls and monitoring telephone calls and text messages as it will be one system from start to finish. Further, other recruiting and monitoring processes will be improved.
- b. Added a statement at the bottom of the Telephone Log Form in the Recruiting Logbook indicating the necessity to denote a no answer/left message call.
- c. Discontinue the practice of assigning student coaches from the continuing education program to sports-specific functions
- d. Require all current University coaching staff members named in this inquiry to attend an educational session on NCAA compliance in addition to the monthly meetings.
- e. Dedicate a monthly coaches' meeting to telephone calls and in the meeting emphasize to the coaching staff members the necessity to log a no answer/left message call.

2. Institution's self-imposed penalties for major violations.

- a. Place itself on a two-year probationary period effective November 13, 2011.
- b. Impose a Department-wide forfeiture of one-week of recruiting phone calls for all sports, served at an appropriate time for each sport.
- c. Undertook overall punitive actions for each sport and individual coaching staff members involved in a text message or impermissible telephone call violation utilizing the following guidelines. All penalties are stackable, for example: each coach gets the one-week department penalty, plus any team penalties, plus individual penalties.

A. INTRODUCTION AND OVERVIEW

1. Initiation of Inquiry – In April 2011, the head men’s basketball coach notified the institution’s Director of Athletics concerning a potential violation involving a student coach, who was assigned to the men’s basketball team as part of the athletics department’s continuing education program for former student-athletes. The Director of Athletics and men’s basketball coach immediately shared the information with the institution’s Assistant Athletics Director for Compliance. The Assistant Athletics Director for Compliance then notified the Faculty Athletics Representative. The Assistant Athletics Director for Compliance and Faculty Athletics Representative interviewed the student coach and reported they believed the student coach had participated in impermissible text messaging and phone conversations with several prospects who the student coach previously coached on an AAU team.

Upon receiving the information from the Assistant Athletics Director for Compliance and Faculty Athletics Representative about the potential violations, the Director of Athletics and Faculty Athletics Representative both contacted the institution’s President. In addition, the Director of Athletics made the decision the student coach be immediately relieved of his assignment with the men’s basketball team and also be discontinued from the athletics department’s continuing education program. Furthermore, the Faculty Athletics Representative and the Director of Athletics requested and received approval from the institution’s President to engage The Compliance Group (TCG) to assist the institution in a thorough and complete review of the potential violations.

Based on the results of the initial review and the advice of TCG, the decision was made to have the institution’s compliance staff conduct a full telephone and text audit of all the institution’s coaches (69 coaches) in all the institution’s 18 sports for a three-year-period (2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 academic years). The scope of the audit included all sports and all coaches for a three-year-period because the institution wanted to be sure the department was in compliance with NCAA rules. The results of those audits were then reviewed and supported by TCG.

2. Results of Inquiry – The extensive and thorough review of phone and text records for all 18 sports over a three year period resulted in the institution self-identifying the following inadvertent violations:

- a. A total of 31 telephone calls were made to prospects during impermissible time periods.
- b. A total of 38 telephone calls were made to prospects during a week that another member of the coaching staff had previously contacted the prospect.
- c. A total of 126 telephone calls were made to prospects during a week in which the coach had previously contacted the prospect.
- d. A total of 34 telephone calls were made by an impermissible caller.
- e. A student coach in men's basketball sent 160 impermissible text messages. The majority of the text messages were the result of the student coach either responding to or initiating contact with members of his former team.

In addition to the violations noted above, the institution's investigation found members of its coaching staff failed to adequately record in their telephone logs over the three-year-period 1,243 calls to prospects in which no impermissible contact was involved. Specifically, the vast majority of these were instances in which no contact was made with the prospect or in which the call was a return of a dropped call. While these instances do not involve impermissible contact, the calls are a violation because the coaches failed to properly log the call.

Although the institution's comprehensive and thorough audit did not result in the discovery of any other violations of NCAA rules, the institution acknowledges a violation of Bylaw 2.8.1. While the institution had an auditing program that compared telephone records and recruiting logs, the institution should have undertaken more effective efforts to identify insufficient documentation and any other types of impermissible telephone calls. Had the institution had a more effective process for identifying insufficient documentation and impermissible calls, the majority of the violations could have been avoided.

As a result of the discovery of these violations, the institution has:

- a. Imposed significant corrective actions, including (1) investing over $82,000 in software to assist in compliance, (2) the elimination of sport specific duties for students participating in the athletic department's continuing education program, (3) the detailing of a specific audit process in order to improve monitoring text and telephone activities and (4) conducting additional educational activities for each sport staff in this area; and
- b. Imposed significant punitive actions, including (1) placing itself on two years probation, (2) suspending recruitment of and all contact with two potential student athletes for over eight months (3) applying significant reductions in the number of future telephone calls (4) applying significant reductions in the periods when these calls can occur, (5) enforcing a reduction in the number of official visits, and (6) imposing a reduction in the number of off-campus recruiters.

Although these actions are significant, the University believes it received a limited, if any, competitive and recruiting advantage as a result of these impermissible telephone calls and text messages because:

- a. The vast majority (nearly 82%) of the impermissible telephone calls were three minutes or less, which resulted in no contact between the coaching staff members and the prospect;
  - b. The violations resulted from a lack of clarity or carelessness on applicable legislation as opposed to deliberate violations. Coaching staff members did not deliberately violate the legislation; and
  - c. The student-athletes interviewed during this investigation indicated their choice of institution was not affected by additional telephone calls.
3. Contents of Report – This report will detail: (1) the University's inquiry; (2) those violations the University believed occurred; and (3) the corrective, punitive, and other actions taken by the University.

B. INQUIRY

1. Overview – In April 2011, the head men’s basketball coach, Fred Hoiberg, notified the institution’s Director of Athletics, Jamie Pollard, that a student coach (Keith Moore) assigned to men’s basketball by the athletics department as part of the department’s continuing education program for former student-athletes, may have had impermissible contact with several prospects who the student coach had previously coached on an AAU team. Pollard and Hoiberg immediately shared the information with the institution’s Assistant Athletics Director for Compliance, Dustin Gray. Gray immediately contacted the institution’s Faculty Athletics Representative, Dr. Tim Day, and apprised him of the possible rules violation, per University policy.

Gray and Day interviewed Moore on April 18. He reported telephone and text contacts with four of his former players from the team he had coached. After reviewing Moore’s records a fifth former player was identified. While the institution only intended to recruit two of these individuals, all five individuals are considered prospects due to their age. Since Moore did not have access to a University-issued cell telephone because he was only a student coach, the University requested and Moore provided his personal telephone and text records to Gray on April 22. Shortly thereafter, text messages and telephone records were reviewed, and impermissible texts messages were identified.

Upon receiving more substantive indication that violations may have occurred, Day and Pollard independently notified the institution’s President, Dr. Gregory Geoffroy. In addition, in consultation with Day, Gray and Hoiberg, Pollard made the decision that Moore be relieved immediately of his assignment with the men’s basketball team and also be discontinued from the athletics department’s continuing education program. In addition, the decision was made to immediately cease recruitment of the two individuals the men’s basketball coaching staff had previously intended to recruit. Furthermore, Day and Pollard requested and received approval from Geoffroy to engage The Compliance Group (TCG) to assist the institution in a thorough and complete review of the potential violations.

On April 25, institutional officials contacted Chuck Smrt with TCG to discuss the institution's inquiry. Shortly thereafter, the Director of Athletics instructed the basketball staff to cease any contact with Moore or others who could be interviewed about the investigation. Moore also was asked not to have any contact with any of the participants on the team he formerly coached. The review of the men's basketball staff records ensued.

In its review, the institution had numerous conversations with its cell telephone provider (Verizon) about its position that text message records of coaching staff members could not be provided to the institution. Due to the institution's persistence, text message records were provided by Verizon for the period of June 2010 to the present. Thorough review of those records revealed nearly all of the text message violations involved Moore and his former team members.

In early August, the institution concluded its initial review of all telephone calls for the prior three academic years. Soon after, the institution began submitting restoration requests for fall sports in accordance with NCAA student-athlete reinstatement procedures. In late August, Smrt visited campus and interviewed numerous coaches, student-athletes, and Gray.

Regarding the interviews, a determination was made that those coaching staff members still employed at the University who were potentially involved in numerous telephone or text messaging violations initially would be interviewed by Smrt. Some currently enrolled student-athletes who may have received these messages or calls were also interviewed. All of these interviews were tape recorded by Smrt and observed by Day. In addition, interviews with two former compliance staff members were subsequently conducted in conjunction with the NCAA Enforcement Staff. Exhibit A is a list of the persons interviewed by University and TCG personnel to date.

In late August, as required by NCAA procedures, the institution began declaring recipient student-athletes ineligible as a result of these telephone call violations. To date, all student-athletes have been reinstated by the NCAA through the normal reinstatement process, without loss of competition.

2. Overview of NCAA Involvement – On September 6, 2011, Smrt contacted NCAA Vice President for Enforcement Services Julie Roe Lach to inform Roe Lach of the University's inquiry. Roe Lach asked that the University keep the Enforcement Staff apprised of the investigation. She requested that the Enforcement Staff be present for the interviews of the two former compliance staff members. These were conducted on September 15 and 16, 2011.

C. TELEPHONE VIOLATIONS

1. Overview

- a. NCAA Legislation – NCAA Bylaw 13.1.3.1 details the permissible time period and frequency of telephone contact between coaching staff members and prospective student-athletes. These time periods and frequencies vary by sport. In this case, telephone violations occurred in 18 sports. Three of these sports have legislation on the number of contacts specific to that sport, while the others have language that is the same as other sports.

Bylaw 13.1.3.4.1 restricts telephone contact with prospects only to certain authorized staff members.

Generally, legislation in most of the sports restricts telephone calls to once per week. Once an institution reaches its applicable limit on the number of telephone calls to a prospect per week, it may not initiate any additional telephone calls during this same period, even if no conversation occurs (i.e., the coaching staff member could not leave a voice mail message). [NOTE: Legislation has been enacted for men's basketball, and is expected to be enacted for all other sports during this academic year, to allow unlimited telephone calls to prospective student-athletes entering their junior year in high school.]

- b. Violations – The University acknowledges the following:

During June 2008 through July 2011, the University violated NCAA legislation pertaining to telephone calls made to prospects by coaching staff members in that approximately 229 impermissible calls occurred. Also, on approximately 1,243 occasions, coaching staff members did not contemporaneously document their phone call as a noncountable call (e.g., place a notation on their recruiting logs that the coaching staff member did not make contact with the prospect during a telephone attempt, or that a call was dropped); the absence of those contemporaneous notes makes those "countable" calls (even without contact), and therefore renders subsequent calls in excess of numeric call restrictions. [NCAA Bylaws 13.1.3.1 and 13.1.3.4.1 ]

- c. Overall Reasons – During their interviews, University coaching staff members stated they understood NCAA restrictions concerning contact with prospects via telephone and that only one call per week was permissible. Further, almost all of the coaches expressed some level of understanding they were supposed to log all of their calls, and several diligently denoted this on their phone logs. However, the inadequate monthly auditing process in place at the institution failed to reinforce the necessity of noting, “left message” or “no contact.” Therefore, while the coaches were informed they were supposed to log all calls (not just calls in which contact was made with a prospect), they did not clearly understand a failure to do so would render further phone calls in that week as violations. Further, the auditing process in place was not effective in identifying the insufficient practices it fostered.

The following are several other general reasons coaching staff members reported why violations occurred:

- i. A few indicated their lack of knowledge about necessity to document a dropped call;
- ii. Several reported they did not realize another coaching staff member already had made the one call per week; and
- iii. The coaching staff member had forgotten he or she previously had made the one call earlier that week.

As will be noted later in this report, the University believes it took significant educational measures to ensure coaching staff members understood NCAA legislation about one call per week and these coaching staff members understood other applicable telephone legislation. However, while education existed, the institution acknowledges further education could have reinforced the necessity of documenting a call that did not result in a contact with a prospect and that absent such documentation, the call became countable.

D. TEXT MESSAGE VIOLATIONS

1. Overview

- a. NCAA Legislation – Effective August 1, 2007, NCAA Bylaw 13.4.1.2 prohibits the sending of text messages by coaching staff members to prospective student-athletes. An override vote on January 12, 2008, at the NCAA Convention ultimately upheld the legislation. [NOTE: Legislation has been enacted for men's basketball and is expected to be enacted for all other sports during this academic year to allow unlimited texting to prospective student-athletes entering their junior year in high school.]
- b. Text Messaging Billing Documentation – Based upon interviews with coaching staff members, nearly all telephone calls to prospects originated from University-issued cellular telephones. Few occurred from their University office telephones. The coaches indicated their cellular telephones were their primary mode of communication.

During the time of the violations in this case, the University was unable to receive monthly detailed text reports from Verizon, its service provider. Upon initiation of the inquiry, the institution began a lengthy process of cajoling Verizon to provide text message information in monthly bill statements, as Verizon indicated such provision was not possible. After significant discussions, text message records beginning in June 2010 were provided. (A monthly text report will be provided moving forward).

The text messaging records indicated the telephone number that was texted and whether it was an incoming or an outgoing text. It should be noted the possibility exists that one text message resulted in two or more text messages being reflected in the billing statement. Nevertheless, the University still classified it as multiple violations.

Other than with the student coach, the University discovered only four impermissible text messages over the past 12 months.

2. Violations – The University acknowledges the following:

During the period of August 2010 to August 2011, a then-student coach, assigned to men's basketball by the athletics department as part of the department's continuing education program for former student-athletes, sent 160 impermissible text messages to several prospective student-athletes who had played on a team previously coached by the then-student coach. The student coach also made 12 impermissible telephone calls to these same prospects. Further, coaches in three other sports made a total of four impermissible texts to various prospects. [NCAA Bylaws 13.1.3.1 and 13.4.1.2]

The following chart depicts the number of impermissible texts by sport:

Sport	Number
Men's Basketball	161
Women's Volleyball	2
Softball	1
Men's Track &amp; Field	1
Total	165

3. Overall Reasons – Only four sports had any impermissible texts, and the student coach assigned to the basketball program during the 2010-11 academic year sent 97 percent of those texts. Other than the then-student coach, coaching staff members stated they understood the prohibition on text messages. All coaches clearly understood texts were prohibited until at least after the prospect signed a NLI. The texts in three other sports were inadvertent.

4. Analysis By Sport

- a. Men's Basketball – Approximately 97 percent of all text messages resulted from the actions of then-student coach Keith Moore. Moore attended Iowa State and competed in basketball and baseball during the 1977-78 through 1980-81 academic years. He subsequently played and coached in the Continental Basketball Association. In 2006, he started his own business in the Ames area that included providing basketball skill development instruction for boys and girls at different age levels. In 2008, he became affiliated with the All Iowa Attack AAU basketball team. During the summer of 2008, he coached a fifth-grade team, and during each of the subsequent three summers (2009, 2010, and 2011), he progressed with the majority of those team members on a sixth-, seventh-, and eighth-grade team. During the summers of 2010 and 2011, he also coached a 15-year-old and a 16-year-old team for the All Iowa Attack.

In the fall of 2010, the athletics department offered Moore the opportunity to return to Iowa State University as part of its continuing education program. The department's continuing education program allows former student-athletes to return to school to complete their undergraduate degrees. In return for the institution paying for the student's tuition, fees and books, the student agrees to serve in some capacity within the athletics department. In the fall of 2010, Moore returned to Iowa State University as a full-time undergraduate student. Moore took a total of 24 credit hours during the 2010-11 academic year and needed an additional 12 more credit hours, at the time he was dismissed from the department's continuing education program, to receive his undergraduate degree. In return for Iowa State University paying for his tuition, fees and books, Moore was assigned by the athletics department to men's basketball to serve in the role as an undergraduate student coach beginning in the fall of 2010.

In early April of 2011, Hoiberg became aware Moore had been staying in contact with several of his former AAU players. Hoiberg immediately brought that information to Pollard and the investigation began. The investigation revealed during the 2010-11 academic year, Moore had made 160 impermissible outgoing texts to prospects and 12 outgoing calls. All of these were to members of his previous team and are summarized below:

The majority of these texts and calls occurred either in the fall of 2010 or the spring of 2011. During his interview with the institution, Moore indicated that as a result of the education he received from the compliance staff upon being hired in the fall of 2010, he knew his relationship with the four prospects that he had coached for the last two years needed to change. He understood he could not recruit the prospects, and he knew recruitment included telephone calls and texts. (At that time, the institution only had interest in recruiting        and        Moore reported he had had a very close relationship with        for the two years in that he had coached the young man and became a confidant. However, he understood he needed to separate himself from his former players due to his status as a student coach. He reported he made these efforts, but the majority of these calls in the fall related to the conclusion of the AAU season or in the spring when the players began texting or calling him about his coaching their team during the upcoming summer. He did not perceive these contacts as “recruiting” since they related to the AAU program.

Moore indicated that he never coached [redacted] but provided him skill instruction on six to seven occasions during the young man’s [redacted] – at least one year prior to becoming a student assistant coach at Iowa State. [redacted] paid Moore for these sessions.

During his recent interview, he initially indicated that he “probably knew” that he could not text prospects. He later indicated that his belief on texting evolved in that he initially thought he could text his former team members, he later believed he that he could respond to a text, and he subsequently believed that he could not text. (The institution believes it was made very clear to Moore upon his hiring when he received an individual educational session about the impermissibility of texting prospects, including his former team members). Nevertheless, the institution believes that Moore’s relationship with the five prospects and the purpose of many of these texts and calls allowed Moore to believe that contacts with his former team members were not considered recruiting and permissible.

- b. Other Sports – The number of texts in these sports were minimal and resulted primarily from not realizing a text had been sent or to whom.

E. FAILURE TO MONITOR

1. Overview

- a. NCAA Legislation – The majority of violations previously acknowledged in this self-report focused upon impermissible telephone calls, primarily related to the lack of documentation of a no contact telephone call to a prospective student-athlete.

The University believes it undertook significant educational efforts with coaching staff members about NCAA legislation regarding the number of permissible calls, as all coaching staff members stated they were aware of the legislation restricting telephone calls to once per week.

The University also believes it undertook significant efforts to monitor telephone calls. In essence, the institution required coaching staff members to submit monthly recruiting logs. The compliance staff reviewed those logs to ensure they did not reveal violations. As an additional measure, the institution compared the recruiting logs to telephone records in some sports for a period of time.

However, based upon the results of this inquiry, the University realizes more effort could have been undertaken to reinforce the necessity of documenting those occasions when they made a call but did not make a contact with the prospect. Although the correct information was provided to the coaches, inadequate monitoring failed to detect or correct lax practices by the coaches and failed to reinforce the necessity of contemporaneous records for all attempted phone calls to prospects. The institution acknowledges the overall auditing process was not as effective as it needed to be, as evidenced by the 229 telephone call violations occurred in 18 sports over a three-year period.

- b. Violation

The University acknowledges that:

While the institution educated its coaching staff members on applicable NCAA legislation, many coaching staff members did not adequately understand that a no-contact telephone call with a prospect is a countable call unless the coach

contemporaneously denotes it as such on a recruiting log. Further, while the institution undertook efforts to compare coaches' monthly telephone logs to long distance billing statements, the institution's monitoring processes were not sufficient to detect impermissible calls. As a result, from the 2008-09 academic year through spring 2011, the scope and nature of the violations detailed in this report demonstrates that the institution failed to adequately monitor its sports programs to assure compliance regarding NCAA telephone call legislation. [NCAA Bylaw 2.8.1]

2. Monitoring Program

- a. Overview – The general monitoring process in the telephone records area utilized by the University's compliance staff involved the following:
  - i. Coaches were required to submit telephone logs monthly to the compliance staff. A member of the compliance staff reviewed these logs to ensure no violations existed based upon the information on the logs; and
  - ii. The person then compared these telephone logs to actual billing statements. (The University's billing statement did not list text messages). This audit process occurred for at least the 2008-09 academic year.
- b. Specific Monitoring and Audit Process – As noted above, the institution had a program in which coaching staff members were required to submit telephone logs monthly from the institution's recruiting software entitled Recruiting Radar. Effective August 1, 2008, all telephone logs had to be submitted by coaching staff members to the compliance staff using Recruiting Radar. Prior to and subsequent to that time, the compliance staff distributed a recruiting logbook that included contact, evaluation, and telephone log sheets. Some coaching staff members contemporaneously utilized the logbook to denote telephone calls, while others denoted elsewhere the date, time, and prospect called. Regardless of the means by which the call was initially denoted, the information had to be included in the Recruiting Radar system, and the telephone logs submitted to the compliance staff had to be printed off from Recruiting Radar.

The page in the Recruiting Logbook for telephone calls included the following columns (See Exhibit C):

- Date
- Time
- Name (of PSA)
- School (State)
- Phone Number
- Position
- Call Made From
- Call Made To (Cell/Home/Other)
- Call Complete (Y/N)

No definition of “Call complete Y/N” is provided.

Besides the option of inserting the above contact information in the Logbook, the coaching staff members could insert the information directly into Recruiting Radar.

The screen from Recruiting Radar includes (See Exhibit D):

- Type of Contact
- Date
- Response
- Phone #
- Call Origination
- Phone History

As indicated in Exhibit D, under “Response”, the drop down screen includes:

- Talk with Prospect
- Left Message
- No Answer
- Prospect Initiated Call
- Talked with Coach

As noted above, if the coaching staff member contemporaneously denoted the telephone contact/attempt in the Logbook, that information needed to be inserted into Recruiting Radar in order for the Recruiting Radar logs to be printed and submitted to the compliance staff. As part of this inquiry, the institution reviewed the logs printed out from Recruiting Radar. The number of no answer/left message (NA/LM) calls denoted on the printout varied by coach. While it is unknown whether a call resulted in a NA/LM unless noted, it appears some coaches routinely placed a NA/LM in their logs, while many coaches did not. Overall, it appears many coaching staff members did not frequently write down the no answer/left message NA/LM calls in their logbook. If they did, they did not insert that information into Recruiting Radar when the information was transferred. Instead, only the calls in which contact was made were denoted.

The printout from Recruiting Radar forwarded to the compliance staff had a different format than the Recruiting Radar input screen (See Exhibit E). If the coaching staff member inserted no information under the “Response” tab in Recruiting Radar, it defaulted to “Talk with Prospect” and printed out as “Talk with Prospect”. While Recruiting Radar allowed coaching staff members to insert “LM/NA” calls, some coaching staffs were more diligent than others in denoting such calls.

During the time period when the majority of the violations occurred, the institution’s compliance staff consisted of the following:

- Josh Snyder, Associate Athletics Director for Compliance (primary responsibility was overall supervisor of the compliance staff)
- Eileen Flaherty, Assistant Director of Compliance (primary responsibility was monitoring and financial aid)
- Dustin Gray, Associate Director of Athletics for Compliance (primary responsibility was education)
- Ed Banach, Assistant Director of Athletics for Compliance (primary responsibility was initial and continuing eligibility and camps and clinics)

Flaherty was employed at the institution from approximately August 2006 to July 2010. She had various responsibilities throughout her tenure, with one of her primary responsibilities being monitoring of several areas, including recruiting. Flaherty stated the monitoring process consisted of two steps. Initially, effective August 2008, all coaches were to submit telephone logs using the Recruiting Radar form. She reported she looked at all of the logs for all sports for all coaches monthly for any obvious violations on the logs.

Flaherty also stated she monthly selected a team and compared the information from Recruiting Radar logs to the actual telephone billing statements. She stated that utilizing an Excel spreadsheet, she randomly selected one sport each month. She would not review the same sport back to back in consecutive months, although she could have done the same sport later in the year. She indicated men’s and women’s basketball and football were always on the Excel spreadsheet, but they were not singled out for a monthly audit. She indicated she would have reviewed all coaches for all telephone logs for that month for that sport. She stated she did this type of audit until her departure in the summer of 2010.

Josh Snyder was the coordinator of the compliance staff at the University. He assumed the overall responsibility for the compliance staff in May 2005 and left the University in December 2010. Snyder reported the institution’s primary monitoring of telephone logs was the monthly submission by coaching staff members and the audit conducted by Flaherty. Snyder believed this occurred until the summer of 2009, when the ACS system was purchased. He reported Flaherty would select at least one coach in two or three sports monthly to review logs and telephone billing statements. These were randomly selected by a computer. Snyder stated he also informed Flaherty she was to include one football or one men's basketball coach each month due to the high profile of those sports. Snyder believed Flaherty then would be reviewing at least three coaches in three different sports each month, although not all of the coaches in that sport would be reviewed. He did not get copies of Flaherty's audit but occasionally talked with her about the audit results.

The University has the monthly telephone logs submitted by the coaches in each sport for the three academic years. These would have been reviewed by Flaherty and served as the basis for the institution's review of the number of occasions when a NA/LM call was placed in the log.

Since Flaherty indicated she kept a record of the sports she audited each month, the University attempted to locate such information. The following is a list of the sports that were audited for the 2008-09 academic year. The electronic file clearly identified the audited sport but did not indicate the results:

September 2008 – Wrestling
October 2008 – Softball
November 2008 – Women's Golf
January 2009 – Women's Tennis
February 2009 – Football
March 2009 – Women's Outdoor Track
April 2009 – Women's Tennis
May 2009 – Softball
June 2009 – Women's Swimming
July 2009 – Volleyball

In the compliance department area of the athletics department hard drive, telephone records for all sports for each month of the 2009-10 academic year are filed. However, no information exists as to the specific sport that may have been audited. As noted above, the ACS system was purchased in the summer of 2009 in part to help with the auditing of the telephone records. Both Snyder and Flaherty indicated that difficulty arose from importing the Recruiting Radar data into the ACS system.

Snyder believed that Flaherty was continuing to undertake some auditing utilizing the previous method, although he acknowledged that it was possible her efforts focused more on matching the Recruiting Radar and the ACS systems.

Based upon the information, the institution is unclear if the monthly audits continued from the summer of 2009 until early 2011. No doubt exists coaches were required to submit their monthly logs from the Recruiting Radar throughout all months of the period of the violations and Flaherty was reviewing them until her departure in late summer 2010.

As part of this inquiry, the institution undertook an analysis of the specific month in which each telephone violation occurred by sport in order to determine if the violations now identified should have been identified at least during the one-year period when a specific sport can be identified as having been monitored. The results are below:

X = Violations Occurred      A = Audited Month

Based upon a comparison of the information in the chart and the audited sports during the 2008-09 academic year, violations occurred during the month in about a third of the sports that were audited. This, in part, serves as a basis for the institution's position on acknowledging a failure to monitor.

- c. Current Process – In March 2011, the University successfully instituted the use of the ACS software to perform these audits. The University used ACS to assist in determining the violations in this report until the end of its contract with ACS. In July 2011, the University purchased a new monitoring system through Bluechip Athletics Solutions, the parent company of Recruiting Radar. This system, part of Bluechip's complete compliance package purchased by the University, makes for a much easier monitoring process. Monthly audits of all sports are being conducted. The audits will be conducted monthly with every sport reviewed every month. The Bluechip Athletics Solutions system organizes and processes thousands of telephone calls in minutes through an electronic import system. The system uploads electronic telephone records, sorts them by recruiting weeks, and analyzes them under current NCAA regulations dependent upon the prospect's year in school and sport.
3. Educational Program
    - a. Overview – The University conducts educational sessions individually with each of its sport teams on approximately eight occasions annually. These in-person sessions include written materials and PowerPoint presentations. Between meetings, coaches electronically receive e-mails, memorandums, etc. that include information about interpretations, recent NCAA infractions cases, etc.

As noted earlier in this report, all coaches understood the NCAA telephone legislation applicable to their sport concerning the number of telephone calls per week. The violations in this report resulted primarily from a coaches' failure to contemporaneously denote they did not make contact with a prospect or the call was dropped.

- b. Coaches' Knowledge of Logging No Contact Calls – In their recent interviews, Gray, Snyder, and Flaherty reported coaches were instructed during educational sessions of the need to write down at the time of the call if the coach did not have a contact with the prospect. This could have been either a “no answer” or a “left message” notation. Gray, who had primary responsibility for education, indicated he clearly understood coaching staff members had to document in their logs notations such as “NA” or “LM” and, if they did not, these calls were countable. He was very convinced the coaching staff members knew they had to document whether they made contact with a prospect, as that had always been the institution's policy.

During their interviews, the majority of the coaches indicated they were not aware they had to denote on their logs a “NA” or “LM” in order to avoid being a countable call. A few reported they occasionally denoted such calls because they were to do so, but these coaches did not realize the call became countable without such notation. Moreover, none of the coaches indicated an awareness if they did not contemporaneously denote it was such on their logs, a violation would occur.

Gray was asked for his reasons why he believed the coaching staff members were aware they knew not only the necessity to log a “NA” or “LM” but also this would be a countable call, and he responded that there was an interpretation in July 2008 that was forwarded to the coaching staff members. (It should be noted that several coaching staff members identified in violations began employment at the University subsequent to the July 2008 memorandum). That e-mail and attachment is included as Exhibit G. Below is the wording of an e-mail dated July 28, 2008, from Gray to all coaches concerning the institution's telephone call policy:

Coaches,

Attached is a document referring to the fictional “three-minute phone call” rule. Please review this document and let me know if there are any questions. The synopsis is there is not a three-minute rule; a phone call less than three minutes is likely a countable call. That can be the same for phone calls under two minutes and under a minute. In addition, this document reiterates the importance of making notes of your calls (e.g., dropped calls, left message).

Thanks,

Dustin

As part of this inquiry, the institution reviewed all other e-mails or interpretations sent electronically to coaching staff members. While several included information on number of permissible calls, none of these additional materials specifically addressed the area of dropped calls or the reasons a NA/LM call becomes a countable call. A review of all other educational materials identifies many times telephone legislation was addressed and the requirement of documenting nontraditional phone calls but no written documentation was found specifically addressing the area of dropped calls or the reasons a NA/LM call becomes a countable call (other than the email above).. Compliance staff members reported it was discussed verbally on several occasions when telephone legislation was reviewed. As noted above, the institution’s position is that educational efforts were made (and the July 28, 2008, e-mail is an example), but additional efforts could have been undertaken to reinforce the application of this NCAA legislation.

F. CORRECTIVE AND PUNITIVE ACTIONS

1. Institution’s Corrective Actions – The institution has or will implement the following:
  - a. Invest over $82,000 over the next three years in compliance and recruiting software with Bluechip Athletics Solution. The software will simplify recording telephone calls and monitoring telephone calls and text messages as it will be one system from start to finish. Further, other recruiting and monitoring processes will be improved.
  - b. Added a statement at the bottom of the Telephone Log Form in the Recruiting Logbook indicating the necessity to denote a no answer/left message call.

- c. Dismissed the student coach involved in impermissible telephone calls and text messages from the program's continuing education program.
  - d. Discontinued the practice of assigning students from the continuing education program to sports-specific functions
  - e. Require all current University coaching staff members named in this inquiry to attend an educational session on NCAA compliance in addition to the monthly meetings.
  - f. Dedicate a monthly coaches' meeting to telephone calls and in the meeting emphasize to the coaching staff members the necessity to log a no answer/left message call.
2. Institution's Punitive Actions – The institution has or will implement the following:
- a. Place itself on a two-year probationary period effective November 13, 2011.
  - b. Impose a Department-wide forfeiture of one-week of recruiting phone calls for all sports, served at an appropriate time for each sport.
  - c. Undertook overall punitive actions for each sport and individual coaching staff members involved in a text message or impermissible telephone call violation utilizing the following guidelines:

Team Penalties:

- Less than 25 violations in that sport – One week of no telephone calls by all coaching staff members;
- 25 to 60 violations in that sport – Two weeks of no telephone calls by all coaching staff members;
- 61 to 199 violations in that sport – Three weeks of no telephone calls by all coaching staff members and decrease recruiting opportunities by one per prospect for the 2011-12 recruiting year; and
- More than 900 violations in that sport – Five weeks of no telephone calls by all coaching staff members, reduce official visits by 20 percent from the four-year average, and limit the number of off-campus recruiters to five for the spring 2012 evaluation period.

Individual Penalties (This would be in addition to the number of no telephone call weeks for that sport's team penalties. For example, if the team had a penalty of four weeks of no telephone calls, this coach would have a total five weeks of no telephone calls):

- Less than 30 violations for that coach – No additional individual restrictions;
- 30 to 50 violations for that coach – One additional week of no telephone calls and a letter of admonishment;
- 50-80 violations for that coach – Three additional weeks of no telephone calls and a letter of admonishment;
- 80 to 100 violations for that coach – Four additional weeks of no telephone calls and a letter of reprimand; and
- More than 100 violations for that coach – Nine additional weeks of no telephone calls and no off-campus recruiting for a month.

A chart depicting the number of violations in that sport and the involved coaching staff member is provided as a reference:

Coaches,

Attached is a document referring to the fictional “three-minute phone call” rule. Please review this document and let me know if there are any questions. The synopsis is there is not a three-minute rule; a phone call less three minutes is likely a countable call. That can be the same for phone calls under two minutes and under a minute. In addition, this document reiterates the importance of making notes of your phone calls (e.g. dropped calls, left message).

Thanks,

- Dustin

Got Questions, Ask Compliance!

History of the three-minute trigger

In the last two years, the enforcement staff processed three major infractions cases involving telephone calls made by coaching staff who did not maintain logs/records. Rather than assume any call, regardless of length, established contact with the prospect, the enforcement staff used a three-minute threshold to determine when a contact occurred. Any call after that contact was assumed a violation. The staff's rationale for initially establishing the three-minute standard was to manage an infractions case involving voluminous calls in a fair and reasonable manner in establishing when a recruiting contact occurred. As a result, the staff established three minutes as the trigger for what would be considered a countable call, absent any circumstances indicating otherwise.

It has come to the staff's attention that some in the membership have taken the staff's discretion exercised in a handful of cases as legislating a minimum time period for what triggers a countable contact. The staff did not intend that any call to a prospect lasting less than three minutes should be excluded from being considered a telephone contact in every circumstance and recognizes that a call lasting less than three minutes could, in fact, be a countable telephone contact with a prospect. The staff reviewed this issue with the Division I Committee on Infractions during the April 2008 agenda session. The following policy is in effect.

Major enforcement's policy

NCAA Bylaw 13.1.3.1 remains in effect, and any discretion used in prior cases as a means to reasonably and fairly approach the specific facts of those cases will not presumably be applied in future cases. Future cases include any case pending, as there is not a notice requirement afforded to member institutions/representatives on how violations will be treated since the rule should not be violated in the first place.

The staff reserves the discretion to analyze and evaluate each individual case it processes but wants to make clear that there is not a "three-minute rule." The starting point for the staff's analysis will consider every call a countable telephone contact. Therefore, any call after the permissible call is made to a prospect is presumably a violation. If a coaching staff makes multiple calls to a prospect within the same week, the coaching staff shoulders the burden (including contemporaneous documentation/logs/records) of demonstrating why the additional calls are not violations. Similarly, if a coaching staff is on the phone with a prospect and the call is dropped, the follow-up call to the prospect is presumed a violation unless the coaching staff member can demonstrate (along with contemporaneous documentation/logs/records) that the first call was dropped. Examining the actual phone records after-the-fact and noting where dropped calls occurred is not sufficient; contemporaneous notes/ logs should be kept by the coaching staff.

Any questions on the interpretation of the rule should be directed to Membership Services. Any questions regarding major enforcement's policy should be directed to Julie Roe, Director of Enforcement.

Guess Who

Rules

- Players will alternate answering a compliance question.
- A player that answers a compliance question correctly gets to peel off a layer of the puzzle.
- The first player to correctly guess the hidden individual wins.
- The topic for this game is telephone calls.

Violation or No Violation

- It is July 10 and a coach tries calling a prospect in Barcelona, Spain. The prospect's 16-year-old sister answers the phone. The coach asks to talk to the prospect. The sister says her mother is going to get him, but the sister remains on the phone. Not wanting to seem rude she begins talking to you about the Tour de France, which started in their town today. You are also a cycling enthusiast and talk to her about Lance Armstrong's chances. Five minutes later the mother comes on and says the prospect went to play fútbol with his friends and won't be back until later.

NO VIOLATION

Talking to the 16-year old sister is also not an infraction as long as no recruiting took place.

Does this call count?

This phone call does not count as a countable call because no recruiting actually took place. However, you should document the call and indicate that you did not talk to the prospect.

2. Violation or No Violation

A coach is visiting a prospect in Valentine, Nebraska on Friday afternoon. However, the coach gets lost and cannot find the prospect's house. He already called the prospect on Tuesday to make plans with prospect. He calls the prospect, gets back on Highway 20 and eventually arrives safely at the prospects house.

NO VIOLATION

Coaches can make unlimited telephone calls to a prospect on the day they are making a in-person, off-campus contact.

Multiple Choice

You are trying to call a prospect on Wednesday afternoon. You dial her cell phone and her boyfriend answers. He says she is finishing up practice and should be free shortly. The boyfriend, apparently a big fan of yours, asks you what you think of his girlfriend. What should you do? Pick the best answer.

Multiple Choice

- A. Answer the question, it would be rude not to. Call back later to talk to the prospect.
- B. Answer his question and send a text later to tell the prospect to call you. You've already used your call for the week.
- C. Don't answer, tell him thank you, hang up and call back later.
- D. Thank him for his time and don't call back later. You've already used your call for the week for the prospect.

BEST CHOICE = C

Talking to the boyfriend about the prospect can be considered recruiting and would then count as a the phone call for the week.

If you did not respond to the question the first phone call would not count against the weekly limitation if no other conversation took place. Then if you called later the second phone call would be permissible.

Texting is a violation.

4. Violation or No Violation

You are calling to arrange an official visit with a prospect. When you call the cell phone listed for the prospect, the prospect's mother answers. She tells you they switched phones because her phone was better for texting. You talk to her about the possibility of arranging an official visit for next weekend. She says that she would be interested but you need to call the prospect to figure out the details. You hang up the phone and call the prospect to set up a visit that will occur in two weeks.

VIOLATION

Once you begin discussing the possibility of an official visit the phone call counts.

5. Violation or No Violation

Your phone is in your pocket while you are eating lunch. When you look at your phone later you notice the prospect's number who you spoke with earlier in the day was redialed from your pocket.

Answer

NO VIOLATION

If you purposely hit the call button because you forgot you or another coach already called that week and hang up before the prospect answers, that is a violation. But an accidental call will not be reported as a violation.

Do you need to record this phone call?

Yes, you need to record it even though you didn't mean to dial the prospect and did not speak with the prospect, the call will still show up in your phone records. Record the call in your phone logs and include an explanation of the accidental call.

6. Violation or No Violation

On Sunday evening a prospect flies home from an official visit at ISU. Later that night, you call him to make sure he made it home safely. On the following Wednesday another coach on your staff makes a telephone call to the prospect.

VIOLATION

Coaches may make unlimited telephone calls to prospects the five days prior to an official visit and during an official visit. In this example, a call was made after the conclusion of the official visit.

7. Violation or No Violation

A prospect departs from his official visit at ISU on a Monday evening. Earlier that day, during the visit, you place several calls to the prospect while she's on campus. On Friday that same week you make a recruiting phone call to the prospect.

NO VIOLATION

Coaches may make unlimited telephone calls to prospects the five days prior to an official visit and during an official visit. In weeks where a portion of the week is unlimited and another portion is limited (e.g. one call per week) ISU is allowed one call during the “limited” portion of the week.

Multiple Choice

A prospect is scheduled to make an official visit on Friday so you make a phone call to her on Wednesday and Thursday that week. On Friday morning you find out the prospect has to cancel the visit. What needs to happen?

Multiple Choice

- A. You notify compliance and the compliance office files an official visit cancellation exception form with the Big 12.
- B. You notify compliance and compliance reports a secondary violation. No penalty is implemented as this is out of your control.
- C. Do nothing, you don't need to notify anyone.
- D. Notify compliance and record in your phone records what happened. Compliance does not report official visit cancellations.

9. Violation or No Violation

While your team is going through its pregame warm-ups you take a minute to call your prized recruit to making sure they're following the game. You're off the phone by time the team finishes warming up and the National Anthem begins.

VIOLATION

Phone calls to a prospect (or the prospective student-athlete's relatives or legal guardians) may not be made during a contests in that sport from the time the team reports on call at the competition site at the direction of the coach until the competition has concluded and the team has been dismissed by the coach.

Electronic mail is permissible.

10. Violation or No Violation

Signing date is November 11.

Despite a good recruiting phone call prospect Awesome Alex doesn't sign with any institution on the 11th. The next day you call Alex again and he is so moved by your speech he signs an NLI with ISU.

NO VIOLATION

Unlimited phone calls are allowed on the initial day for signing a NLI and the two days immediately following.

Compliance Excellence Cup

What is the first permissible date a coach may encourage a prospect to call a student-athlete and what year must the prospect be entering in high school?

July 1 – Prospect must be heading into his or her junior year of high school.

Violation or No Violation

On a December afternoon you download your team's online media guide to a blank 128 megabyte flash drive. The digital guide is 115 megabytes, contains color pictures throughout the guide, and is 200 pages in length.

Ames, Iowa 50014

Dear Mr. Moore:

In a September 11, 2012, email, the NCAA enforcement staff requested that you review and respond to proposed findings related to the men's basketball program at Iowa State University. I contacted you July 6 and September 9, 2012, regarding the information contained in the findings. To date, you have not responded to any of my voicemails. As a result, the enforcement staff would like to make a final request.

It should be noted that the institution and other involved individuals would like to process the alleged violations through the summary disposition process, pursuant to NCAA Bylaw 32.7. The enforcement staff notes that the proposed findings related to the men's and women's basketball program include allegations against you. If the NCAA Division I Committee on Infractions finds that you were involved in significant violations of NCAA legislation, disciplinary actions could be considered and imposed on you by a member institution for a designated period of time.

A copy of the September 11 email, the proposed findings and a Guide to the Summary Disposition are included with this letter for your review. The enforcement staff requests that you inform us as to whether you would be willing to process this case through the summary disposition process or through the notice of allegations process. If you do not wish to participate in either process, please advise us of that as well. Please note, even if you choose not to participate in either process, the committee could still make findings involving you and could still impose disciplinary or punitive actions against you, as described above.

Please contact me with your response by December 17. If you have any questions, you can contact me at 317/917-6025 or at my email address, which is contained within the September 11 email that included for your review.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Ramsey

I would like to convey remorse for any difficulty I have caused Iowa State University through this process. I would also like to express that I do not feel my actions constitute a Major Violation.

I think it is of the utmost importance to note that I did not intentionally break any NCAA rule to gain a recruiting advantage. Hopefully, I can explain myself in a manner that you will understand my actions. I understand that I cannot make more than one call per week outside the contact period and I never would have intentionally done so.

When I took my current position at Iowa State University, our compliance department specifically told me that I was not responsible for documenting voicemails that were left because they were not considered countable calls. Therefore, I have no records of many of these calls because all they consisted of was a left voicemail.

For four of the calls that are in questions, I left a voicemail. The NCAA has interpreted that a 3 minute message is a Countable Call. Per Verizon, any placed call that lasts 121 seconds to 180 seconds is logged as a 3 minute call. Verizon also allows customers to have a voice mailbox message of up to 2 minutes. I believe that with some recruits messages being long, it is reasonable to believe that a standard voicemail could be listed as a three minute call based on how Verizon calculates call length. Please see my attached notes from my conversation with Verizon.

Another four of my calls listed as “culpable” were to _____ after he had signed his FAA. It was my understanding that I was allowed unlimited calls to _____ as the rule is currently. _____ was returning to campus to begin his summer class work and his mom was very _____. I was attempting to alleviate his stress and guide him during that difficult time. As I previously stated, there was no attempt to gain a recruiting advantage, nor did I intentionally break an NCAA rule.

Six of the calls in question involved _____. There were seven calls placed over two days resulting in six violations. _____ family and I had been planning an Official Visit to Iowa State University on November 5th, 2010. With _____ coming on an Official Visit I knew that I could contact _____ an unlimited amount the 5 days prior to his visit. On the following Thursday, _____ verbally committed to _____ and cancelled his trip to Iowa State University. Please see the attached e-mail from _____ mom about their intentions of making an Official Visit that weekend.

My 32 year coaching record indicates that I have never attempted to circumvent the system. Furthermore, I hope the details of these calls make it apparent to anyone looking at this case that the infractions I have been accused of are not just clear-cut as there are mitigating circumstances to each. Also, it is important to note that none of the calls in questions provided Iowa State University with a recruiting advantage.

Sincerely,

Bill Bleil
Assistant Head Football Coach

Verizon Phone

3/8/2013

With the NCAA's response that a number of the placed calls on my cell phone bill that were listed as 3:00 minutes would be considered calls that I had in actuality talked with the Recruit and not left messages, I contacted Verizon and posed the question.

"How are placed calls timed and listed on Verizon's bill."

They noted that all calls are rounded up every 60 seconds. 1:01 minutes would be billed and listed as 2:00 minutes. 2:35 minutes would be billed and listed as 3:00 minutes. I then asked the question

"How long (how many minutes) can a message in the Voice Mailbox be within the Verizon system".

They told me that Verizon allowed voice mailbox messages of up to 2:00 minutes in length.

With these answers I find it unusual that the NCAA would make the statement that a call listed as 3:00 minutes long is not capable of being a voice message, only those listed as 2:00 minutes or shorter.

Dustin—

Please see the email from _____ mom about coming on an Official Visit during the time period of the calls that Coach Bleil made. _____ canceled on us late in the week and no paper work was given and no plane ticket was bought due to the uncertainty of the kid. Going forward, the recruiting office will send an email on Sunday with all kids that our coaches plan on bringing on an official for the that following weekend so we have record on both ends in case someone cancels on us late and we don't have this situation.

Please let me know if I need to do something different on this to make sure all parties are covered.

Thanks

Nick

To whom it may concern:

This is intended to serve as my personal statement regarding the recent findings in the final summary disposition. First and foremost I would like to apologize for any trouble I have brought upon Iowa State University. I would also like to state that I do not feel my actions constitute a major violation. At no point did I intentionally break NCAA bylaws. I understand that I cannot make more than one call per week if not in a contact period and wouldn't do so intentionally.

A number of the impermissible contacts that have been documented in the report were a matter of me not being made aware by our compliance department that documentation was needed if I left a message or did not make contact with the PSA.

Four of the 13 culpable calls, follow a call lasting three-minutes in length, which the NCAA deems a countable call. A call that last 121 seconds is technically a three minute call per Verizon's billing structure. Verizon allows a customer to have a voicemail greeting up to 2 minutes in length. These calls, which I remember to be voicemails left at the end of the greeting, went undocumented.

I attribute 2 of my culpable calls to dropped service. I re-established a connection, however the calls were not completed immediately following the dropped service. Finally, another call was made to a prospect attending camp during the summer camp window.

I take great pride in my knowledge of the NCAA bylaws under which we operate. At no point in my coaching career have I intended to gain any sort of a recruiting advantage by knowingly circumventing any rules. I am very aware that I am only as good as my name, and I believe the entirety of my coaching career reflects just that. I feel that coaching is a special calling. At the end of the day, our job is to help young boys grow into young men, and I take this responsibility very seriously.

Sincerely,

R. Shane Burnham

Iowa State University genuinely appreciates the assistance from the NCAA enforcement staff with processing this case. Specifically, Elizabeth Ramsey has been very helpful and always available, greatly assisting us in our efforts to discover, report and resolve the unique specifics of our case.

Iowa State University is absolutely committed to NCAA rules compliance; the progression of this entire case is an illustration of that commitment.

- The telecommunications investigation was triggered when the head men's basketball coach witnessed a possible violation involving student coach, and reported that immediately to the Director of Athletics and the Compliance office. The department took immediate action (within 24 hours) to terminate the student coach and begin thoroughly investigating the possible violations.
- Our investigation progressed exactly as prescribed by our protocol for dealing with potential rules violations. The center of the investigation rested within the President's office, and the Compliance staff was uncompromisingly thorough in their investigation.
- All Athletics Department personnel were completely cooperative and open throughout the investigation.
- Due to the institution's commitment to uncover every potential violation, the resultant telecommunications investigation was the most extensive that has ever been completed, to the best of our knowledge. Our investigation included reviewing nearly three years of telecommunication records (over 750,000 phone calls), for the entire Athletics Department, including all of our 69 coaches and our non-coaching staff members.

We spared neither expense nor effort in order to discover the extent of these potential violations.

The exhaustive investigation unfortunately uncovered that our institution was not thorough enough in the monitoring of our telecommunication records. This deficiency contributed to a significant number of telecommunication violations. Iowa State University profoundly regrets that these violations occurred, and the institution has already taken significant, effective action to prevent any further violations. This Summary Disposition, based on our investigative data, accurately reports those violations.

Regarding the impermissible telephone calls throughout our sports programs:

Our examination of over 750,000 individual telephone call records uncovered a total of 1,484 impermissible calls (less than 0.2%) over three years across all sports. Of the 1,484 phone calls, 1,260 of the calls were attributed to purely logging issues, as detailed in this report and acknowledged by the NCAA's enforcement staff. To be as clear as possible, these are instances in which coaches may not have made impermissible contact with recruits, but simply failed to properly document why the call was a noncountable call. These are binned in the Summary Disposition as "Pure Logging Issues."

The remaining 224 impermissible calls (0.02% of the total calls made) amongst all of our coaches and noncoaching staff over the three-year period include 145 “culpable telecommunication violations”, 55 “noncoaching staff impermissible telecommunications contact violations”, and 24 “clear-cut intentional telecommunication violations”. These impermissible calls are detailed in the Summary Disposition, and Iowa State University agrees with the characterization of those calls within the report.

Iowa State University acknowledges that the institution failed to effectively monitor these aspects of telecommunications during this time. The compliance office had purchased software (through ACS) intended to meet the telecommunications monitoring needs of the department. When personnel experienced repeated setbacks in implementing the software, a manual process for monitoring was drafted. The process was simply not sufficiently followed, due in part to the sheer volume of phone records that were required to be reviewed manually each month.

Our institution’s failure to implement its own written policies is significantly responsible for the number of coaches that failed to properly log “non-countable” calls. If we had appropriately implemented our monitoring system, inadvertent logging practices of our coaches would have been detected, and a prompt monitoring response would have deterred those coaches from accumulating the appreciable number of logging issues in this report. It is appropriately characterized in the Summary Disposition as a systemic problem that incubated “systemic logging failures.” The institution deeply regrets our failure to monitor and enforce NCAA telecommunications rules and has implemented procedures to properly address this problem.

Along with our monitoring failures, the coaches’ testimonies within the report indicate that our educational efforts left them unclear regarding logging obligations. ISU acknowledges there were educational deficits. We would ask the committee to consider that many of our coaches did understand their obligations and, in fact, most of our coaches properly logged their calls most of the time. The same dataset from which we discovered these violations also reveals that most of our coaches were properly logging their calls most of the time. The table below demonstrates that each of the randomly selected coaches properly logged most of their non-countable calls. They properly logged over 95% of their non-countable calls; although they obviously understood their obligations, their practice was deficient 5% of the time.

Analysis of a Selection of ISU Coaches' Phone Records
Random Coach ID	Sport ID	Year	properly documented non-countable calls (e.g. contemporaneous "LM")	improperly documented non-countable calls (e.g. no contemporaneous "LM")
Coach A	1	2010-2011	109	18
Coach B	2	2009-2010	48	4
Coach C	3	2009-2010	46	8
Coach D	4	2008-2009	51	4
Coach E	5	2009-2010	572	8
Coach F	6	2009-2010	140	1
Coach G	7	2010-2011	30	3
Coach H	8	2010-2011	7	3
Coach I	9	2010-2011	3	0
Coach J	10	2010-2011	9	1
Coach K	11	2010-2011	24	1
Coach L	12	2010-2011	3	3
Coach M	13	2010-2011	2	0
Total			1044	54
Coaches were selected from 13 different sports and their phone records analyzed for one year.

We absolutely believe that the coaches who generated the most violations did not properly understand their logging obligations, pointing to an educational deficit. We appeal that our efforts were effective enough to educate most of the coaches, while acknowledging that they were not sufficient to prevent all misunderstanding. As described in the report, and acknowledged above, a lack of effective monitoring allowed those misunderstandings to go undetected and fostered the accumulation of a large number of logging violations over time.

Our institution swiftly overhauled our entire approach to telecommunications monitoring in order to ensure timeliness and efficacy, including the purchase and implementation of a different software-based tool (Bluechip Athletic Solutions). The new, comprehensive monitoring protocols were implemented in August of 2011, and they have been demonstrably effective.

For example, for the first six months, the new protocols identified an average of 1.5 impermissible phone calls per month; over the next 12 months that dropped dramatically to 0.5 impermissible phone calls per month. Firstly, this demonstrates that our new approach is effective in detecting impermissible or improperly logged phone calls. Secondly, the data show that the timely negative feedback provided through the thorough an effective monitoring system facilitated a decrease in inadvertent violations.

Regarding the impermissible text messaging by an individual who was then a student coach for the men's basketball team:

Keith “Lefty” Moore, a former Iowa State University student-athlete, was a student assistant coach working with the Men’s Basketball team from the fall of 2010 through April 12, 2011. Moore was not hired by the basketball program, but rather was assigned to the basketball program, under the former head basketball coach, as a participant in a degree-completion program within the Athletics Department.

Moore had coached and mentored a number of potential student-athletes on non-scholastic teams prior to returning to Iowa State University to work toward completing his degree. Our investigation discovered that Moore sent 160 impermissible text messages to five of these prospects.

Again, our institution deeply regrets that Moore communicated via texts with his former players, even if he was responding as a mentor, and not in any way recruiting those prospective student athletes. Upon discovery of the violations, Iowa State University immediately removed Moore from his position and ceased all recruiting contact with the potential student athletes. None were offered athletics financial aid or a spot on the team as a walk-on student athlete, so Iowa State University clearly received no competitive advantage from Moore’s impermissible texts.

In order to prevent future violations of this nature, our institution completely restructured the returning student-athlete program. Returning student athletes can no longer be assigned to specific sport coaching staffs; they are now limited to administrative responsibilities meeting department-wide objectives (and not objectives related to any specific sport).

Regarding our self-imposed penalties

We imposed meaningful sanctions in order to negate any potential advantage, and to admonish violators. Those sanctions are detailed in Section F of this report.

Precedent set by the three most recent similar telecommunications cases guided our sanctions (University of California, University of Cincinnati, and Baylor University). Also, as reflected in the report produced by our collaboration with NCAA enforcement, we considered the number of violations per month for individuals, in order to normalize for the remarkably long period scrutinized in our extensive investigation.

We meted the sanctions in three levels: department-wide, teams and individuals. The sanctions were stacked at each level.

- Firstly, the entire Athletics Department was placed on a two-year probationary period effective November 13, 2011. Further, the entire Athletics Department served a forfeiture of one week of recruiting calls at an appropriate time for each sport. To be clear, those penalties were imposed on all coaches, all sports regardless of culpability.
- Secondly, each specific sport was given penalties commensurate with their team culpability which were added to the department-wide penalties
- Thirdly, each coach was given penalties commensurate with their individual culpability, which were added to the department-wide and team penalties.

The result was the self-imposition of sanctions that affected the entire department with escalated severity to specific sports and individuals as warranted by their culpability. The sanctions were quite punitive to those with the most violations, and they provided an unmistakable message to everyone in the department that all NCAA rules are taken seriously at ISU.

Conclusion

In conclusion, Iowa State University acknowledges and accepts responsibility for the violations detailed in this report, as discovered by our own investigation with support from NCAA enforcement. We would ask the committee to consider:

1. Our institution responded rapidly and resolutely to potential violations.
2. Our institution conducted a remarkably thorough investigation, sparing no expense in uncovering every possible violation.
3. The violations that we discovered produced very little, if any, recruiting advantage.
  - a. Over 85% of the phone call violations did not result in contact beyond that which was permissible.

- b. Student-athletes interviewed in the investigation uniformly reported that any additional phone contact did not contribute to their decision to attend ISU.
  - c. ISU discontinued recruiting of all prospects that received impermissible text messages from the student assistant basketball coach.
- 4. Although the telephone legislation has been and continues to be significantly deregulated, ISU took these violations seriously, imposing significant penalties. We imposed significant penalties Department-wide, on specific sports coaching staffs, and on specific coaches.
- 5. In the 18 months since the submission of our thorough self-report, we have enacted thoughtful, aggressive changes in protocol to address the issues that permitted the violations. The data prove that those changes have been effective.

NCAA Enforcement Staff Position Statement

As outlined in the findings of this report, the involved individuals named and at risk acknowledge their involvement in violations of NCAA legislation but believe that the violations should be found as secondary violations. The NCAA enforcement staff believes that all coaches named and at risk should be found responsible for major violations because the violations were not isolated or inadvertent and, based on the large number of impermissible calls, provided more than a minimal recruiting advantage.

The respective findings for those involved individuals who are contesting that the violations are major and the breakdown of impermissible calls for each is as follows:

Finding No. 1-b-(1) – Bobby Elliott, then assistant football coach and current University of Notre Dame assistant football coach:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Elliott	199	180	0	19	19

Finding No. 1-b-(2) – Bill Bleil, assistant football coach:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Bleil	78	58	2	18	20

Finding No. 1-b-(3) – Shane Burnham, assistant football coach:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Burnham	93	80	4	9	13

Finding No. 1-b-(4) – Luke Wells, then assistant football coach and current Utah State University assistant football coach:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Wells	93	81	8	4	12

Finding No. 2-c-(1) – Danyial Robinson, then assistant men's basketball coach and current University of Houston assistant men's basketball coach:

Coach	Total Violations	Logging Issue	Impermissible Time Period	Culpable	Total Culpable
Robinson	64	43	0	21	21

ENFORCEMENT STAFF POSITION STATEMENT

It is important to note that the culpability analysis used by the enforcement staff in determining which coaches to name in the findings outlined in this report is not the same analysis used by the enforcement staff in determining whether the violations should be classified as major or secondary. As detailed in the findings, the total impermissible calls placed by the coaches was quite significant and the enforcement staff has consistently processed allegations as major that involve such a large number of calls. Even if the staff only took into account the culpable calls in determining whether to process the violations as major or secondary, the enforcement staff has processed allegations as major where individuals had placed fewer impermissible calls than those "culpable calls" placed by coaches involved in this case.

In addition, based on the large number of culpable calls for each coach, the enforcement staff believes that the calls were not inadvertent. The number of culpable calls attributed to each coach consisted largely of repeated calls by the same coach during a designated time period. Therefore, the staff does not believe the evidence supports a conclusion that the calls were inadvertent.

Finally, the staff believes that as with most telephone call violations, the fact that the coaches were calling more often than other coaches resulted in more than a minimal recruiting advantage.

For these reasons and based on the specific facts and circumstances outlined in this report, the staff believes that the violations involving the coaches listed above should be found to be major.

Release: 04/06/2009

Remsen native Bill Bleil, who coached with Iowa State head coach Paul Rhoads at Pacific and Pittsburgh, began coaching under Rhoads as assistant head coach and offensive line coach at Iowa State in 2009. In a short time, Bleil has revamped the Cyclone offensive front. Sports Illustrated affirmed the job Bleil is doing as offensive tackle Kelechi Osemele was named a 2011 first-team All-American. Osemele also earned an individual berth in the 2012 Senior Bowl. He was a second round NFL draft pick of the Baltimore Ravens.

Meet Bill Bleil

Osemele earned first-team All-Big 12 honors in 2011 with tackle Hayworth Hicks earning honorable mention All-Big 12 recognition. Hicks signed a free agent contract with Indianapolis Colts.

One of Bleil's Iowa State protégés, center Reggie Stephens, plays in the NFL for the Chicago Bears after being drafted and playing for the Cincinnati Bengals. His 2010 replacement, Ben Lamaak earned second-team All-Big 12 honors in 2010.

Bleil's men in the trenches figured large in Iowa State's offensive improvement in 2011. The Cyclones improved their statistical standing in rushing offense, passing offense and total offense over 2010. Iowa State's scoring offense improved for the third straight season.

In 2010, Alexander Robinson finished his career ranking fourth in rushing on the all-time Iowa State list. Quarterback Austen Arnaud finished his Cyclone tenure last season as the No. 2 passer in school history.

With Bleil coaching the offensive line, Iowa State improved its rushing yards per game total by more than 40 yards per contest in 2009, ranking third in the Big 12 and 35th nationally. The Cyclones cut their sacks allowed total from 40 in 2008 (3.3 per game) to 16 (1.23 per game) in 2009. Stephens earned first-team All-Big 12 honors before departing for the NFL. Osemele earned second-team all-conference honors.

Bleil, who has coached all-star performers in several conferences, including the Big Ten and Big East, was the head coach at Western Carolina for five seasons.

Bleil coached four seasons at Akron, where he was the assistant head coach the last three campaigns. After overseeing the running backs in his first two seasons with the Zips, Bleil coached the tackles and tight ends in 2007 and 2008.

Bleil's success in producing standout players continued at Akron in 2008 as offensive tackle Chris Kemme became the first Zip to be a three-time All-Mid-American Conference selection. He was the eighth Akron player to be named first-team All-MAC. Kemme anchored an offensive line that allowed just 1.5 sacks per game in 2008 as the Zip offense averaged nearly 400 yards per contest.

In his inaugural season at Akron, Bleil helped tutor second-team All-Mid-American Conference running back Brett Biggs, the program's first 1,000-yard rusher since the 2002 season. Biggs finished the year with 1,230 rushing yards, the fifth-highest single-season total in school history, and most since the Zips moved to the Football Bowl Subdivision in 1987. Biggs was also among the top receiving backs in the nation in 2005. His five catches per game ranked third nationally among backs. Biggs' efforts enabled the Zips to become the 31st team in NCAA history with a 1,000-yard rusher, 1,000-yard receiver and 3,000-yard passer.

In 2006, Dennis Kennedy was tabbed second-team All-MAC, rushing for 914 yards despite missing a game-and-a-half due to an injury. Bleil's running backs also took care of the football. They lost just one fumble in 2005. Biggs fumbled only once in 284 carries. In 2008, Kennedy coughed the ball up just twice in 226 carries, while Andre Walker did not fumble in 65 carries.

Bleil spent the 2004 season as the offensive tackles/tight ends coach under Walt Harris at Pittsburgh as the Panthers went to their first-ever BCS bowl game when they took part in the 2005 Fiesta Bowl versus Utah. Rhoads was the Pitt defensive coordinator that season.

He served the 2003 season under Joe Novak at Northern Illinois, knocking off traditional powers Alabama and Maryland en route to posting a school-record 10-2 mark, and one year (2002) at South Dakota.

Bleil also has head-coaching experience, having led the Western Carolina program for five years (1997-01). During that span, he was named 2001 Southern Conference Coach of the Year and led the Catamounts to their first winning season since 1994 with a 6-5 mark in 1998.

Prior to his stint in Cullowhee, N.C., Bleil served four seasons at Pacific (1992-95) and two years at Northwestern College (1990-91), his alma mater. He was the offensive line coach at both stops before being elevated to offensive coordinator for the final three years with Pacific. Rhoads was also an assistant coach on that staff.

He and his wife Laurel have two sons, Kevin, a graduate assistant coach with the Cyclones, and Tim.

Release: 02/19/2009

Shane Burnham's coaching ability was underscored by the improved play of Iowa State's defensive tackles through three seasons under Burnham's tutelage. Burnham works in Ames under his father, Iowa State defensive coordinator Wally Burnham.

Cyclone Audible: Shane Burnham

Defensive tackle Nate Frere finished his career under Burnham in 2009, completing his eligibility with 69 tackles, 34 of them in 2009. It was Stephen Ruempolhamer who stepped up under Burnham's coaching the last two seasons. Ruempolhamer finished his career with 91 tackles, 14 for loss, and six sacks. Former walkon Patrick Neal closed out his career with 98 tackles and 5.5 sacks.

Burnham's contribution coaching special teams can't be underplayed. His oversight of the Iowa State kickoff coverage team netted great results in 2009, as the Cyclones ranked seventh nationally, allowing just 18.1 yards per return. His punt return unit improved from ranking 99th nationally in 2009 to 40th in 2010.

Burnham had been linebackers/defensive ends coach and special teams coordinator at Elon from 2005-08. Elon finished the 2008 season ranked 19th in the final FCS coaches poll. The Phoenix was third in the Southern Conference and 29th nationally in total defense, allowing 388.9 net yards per contest. Elon landed second in the conference and 30th in the country in scoring defense. At Elon, Burnham coached former Jacksonville Jaguar Chad Nkang to SoCon Defensive Player-of-the-Year and All-America honors.

As special teams coordinator, Burnham saw the Elon punt return unit rank 17th nationally by averaging 11.93 yards per return in 2007. Senior Michael Mayers, a first-team All-SoCon selection as a return specialist, ranked seventh in the country, averaging 28.77 yards per kickoff return that fall.

Burnham joined the Phoenix staff for the 2005 season after serving at The Citadel as a linebackers coach in 2004. Previously, Burnham was a linebackers coach at Richmond for four years (1998, 2001-03). While there, he coached All-Atlantic 10 Conference selections Adrian Archie and Mark Thompson. He also helped the Spiders claim a conference title and an NCAA I-AA playoff berth during his tenure.

A 1998 graduate of South Carolina, Burnham earned a bachelor's of science degree in exercise science while collecting four varsity letters for the Gamecocks' football team. The two-year starter was named his team's most outstanding inside linebacker as both a junior and a senior.

As a senior, the three-time Academic All-SEC choice received his team's leadership award and was named the Honda/Jefferson-Pilot Scholar-Athlete of the Week for his performance in games against both Kentucky and Auburn.

Shane Burnham is married to the former Meagan Drolet, who was a swimmer at Virginia Tech. The couple are parents of daughters Lindsay and Brady.

A native of Rock Island, Ill., Robinson spent the 2007-08 season as an assistant at UALR, helping his alma mater earn its first 20-win season (20-11) since 1995-96 and claim the Sun Belt Conference West Division title under head coach Steve Shields.

Luke Wells

- ▶ Position:
Co-Offensive Coordinator/TE's/Recruiting Coordinator
- ▶ Experience:
1st Year at USU
- ▶ Alma Mater:
Oklahoma, 2001

Luke Wells, who helped Iowa State to back-to-back bowl appearances the past two seasons, has been named Utah State's co-offensive coordinator, tight ends coach and recruiting coordinator it was announced Saturday by Aggie head coach Matt Wells. Luke Wells is the younger brother of Matt Wells.

"I am very happy to announce Luke Wells as a member of our staff," said Matt Wells. "Luke's background in the Big 12 Conference for the last four years, along with his familiarity with spread and no-huddle offenses, will be very beneficial here at Utah State. His background in recruiting Texas will be an integral part of our recruiting efforts and we are happy that he and his family are joining our Aggie football family."

In all, Luke Wells spent four seasons at Iowa State (2009-12) working with the tight ends for the past two years after coaching the wide receivers during his first two seasons in Ames. During the past two years, Luke Wells helped the Cyclones to back-to-back bowl games as it played in the 2011 New Era Pinstripe Bowl against Rutgers and the 2012 Auto Zone Liberty Bowl against Tulsa.

"Matt has a track record of being a great football coach and an outstanding recruiter and I'm ecstatic about coming to Utah State and working for my brother, which is something I've wanted to do for a long time and something we have talked about in the past. It's an incredible opportunity not only professionally, but personally as well," said Luke Wells. "I'm excited for the chance to come to a university that's been extremely successful on the football field and won a bunch of games, and to be part of an explosive offense that's going to put points on the board."

During this past season at Iowa State, Luke Wells mentored Cyclone tight end Ernst Brun who earned honorable mention all-Big 12 honors as he caught 26 passes for 330 yards (25.4 ypg) with six touchdowns. Brun was also named ISU's Offensive Player of the Game at the Auto Zone Liberty Bowl as he had four receptions for 102 yards, which included a 69-yard touchdown.

As wide receivers coach at Iowa State during the 2009 and 2010 seasons, Luke Wells coached wide receivers Darius Darks and Darius Reynolds who finished their careers combining for 208 receptions for 2,396 yards and 16 touchdowns. Darks now stands tied for seventh on the all-time Iowa State career reception list.

Prior to his stint at Iowa State, Luke Wells spent six years at Louisiana-Monroe serving as an offensive graduate assistant in 2003 before being elevated to a full-time assistant coach from 2004-08. During his last two years at ULM, Wells served as the Warhawks' recruiting coordinator, as well as wide receivers coach, and helped bring in the highest-rated recruiting classes in school history.

The Louisiana-Monroe offense posted the highest scoring average in the school's NCAA FBS history in 2008 as Warhawk wide receiver Anthony McCall set a school record for freshman touchdown receptions that season.

Luke Wells took over the wide receivers at ULM in 2007 and mentored all-Sun Belt second-team selection LaGregory Sapp who led the league in yards per reception with 19.6 on 40 catches for 784 yards. In all, Warhawk receivers caught 16 touchdown passes that year.

In 2004 and 2005, Luke Wells worked with the tight ends and all-Sun Belt first-teamer Joey Trappey who was the top receiving tight end in the Sun Belt with 42 receptions for 425 yards.

Prior to ULM, Luke Wells coached wide receivers at Denton High School in Texas, helping his team win the 2002 bi-district championship.

Before that, Luke Wells was a student assistant coach at Oklahoma from 1999-2001. His responsibilities included assisting with quarterbacks and wide receivers, coaching and coordinating scout team defense and special teams, and assisting with recruiting. His work helped the Sooners win the 2000 Big 12 Conference crown and national title. The Sooners also won the 2001 Cotton Bowl and participated in the 1999 Independence Bowl. Wells worked under several outstanding coaches during his time at OU - Bob Stoops, Mike Leach and Mark Mangino.

Luke Wells earned his bachelor's degree from Oklahoma in secondary education in 2001 and did graduate work at ULM. He is married to the former Coby Groves and the couple has one son, Walker (5), and one daughter Kinsley (3).
